RESTRICTED TRADING IN STOCK MARKETS

DUBLIN

Trading on the Dublin Stock Exchange yesterday was even on a more restricted scale than of late, and markets presented an idle appearance. There was, however, a fairly good enquiry for local securities, and the tone continued firm in most groups. British Industrials were devoid of interest, but advices from London showed very little alteration in prices.

Among Home Government Funds, the Fourth National Loan fell 7/6 to 97 in a small way, but Conversion Loan improved to 102⅜. 4½ per cent. Land Bonds tended higher, but the 4 per cent. Bonds eased to 99¾. British Funds hardened slightly towards the close, and Dublin 4¼ per cent. 1955/'77 made headway to 97. Banks were quiet and featureless.

Guinness Units, on small selling, lost a few pence at 84/9. Great Southern Guaranteed (City of Dublin Junction) advanced to 52, and Great Northern Debenture gained 10/- at 40¼. Dublin Tram Preference hardened to 18/9, and Alliance Gas Ordinary rose to 22/9. Cement Ordinary shaded off to 29/6, but Hely's Debenture jumped 2/- to 185/-, and Independent "B" Ordinary were raised 1/- to 36/-. Fry-Cadbury Preferences were a firm spot, and other local Industrials held steady.

British Industrials, although quiet, were remarkably firm. Coats Ordinary quoted 28/1½, and Associated Cement Ordinary 55/-.

LONDON MONEY MARKET

There was again no events of outstanding interest in yesterday's Money Market. The plethora of credit was fully maintained, and many potential lenders were left with unemployed balances at the close. Those in need of accommodation for the night obtained their requirements without difficulty in non-clearing quarters on the usual terms. The demand for bills tended to become still more keen. The clearing banks were ready buyers of all dates to early November at the customary minimum of 1 p.c. while market houses were ready purchasers of commercial paper at the usual rates.

The turnover in silver was again quite small. Spot remained at Monday's level of 23 7/16d. per ounce, but forward gained 1/16d. to reach 22 15/16d. per ounce the highest point for some time.

In the foreign exchanges official rates were unchanged, and the only alteration in the unofficial list was a slight deterioration in Japanese yen.

Sterling was firmer in the free market in New York, early business being transacted around 4.02.

LONDON

Business on the London Stock markets yesterday moved quietly pending Mr. Churchill's statement on the war situation, but, notwithstanding the continued scarcity of buying orders, recent firmness was well maintained, with several groups deriving encouragement from a resumption of the upward movement in Gilt-edged Securities.

The principal features were again centred among Mines, where renewed interest spread from the Rhodesian Copper group to Kaffirs, and some of the leading West Africans. Industrials showed only fractional changes, but these were mostly in the right direction and firm spots were provided by Aircrafts and Breweries, the former attracting attention on the good Blackburn report and the maintenance of the Folland final payment.

Exceptionally, Building issues displayed an easier tendency owing to the view that rising costs will cut into better prices now being obtained. Interest in Gilt-edged was livelier than on Monday, but actual transactions were still on a small scale, and the firm trend of quotations was largely due to shortage of supplies.

Old War Loan was supported up to 100⅛, at which level a gain of ⅛ was recorded, and similar improvements were established by Old Consols, Conversion 3½ per cent. and Local Loans.

India Stocks were again without movement, and only in rare instances were there any alteration in prices for Dominion and Colonial issues. Foreign Bonds were notable for a revival of demand for Japanese issues, and the 6 per cent., 1924, which claimed particular attention, spurted from 26½ to 28. Selected Brazilians also attracted a certain amount of support, and Egyptian Unified put on another point to 61. Europeans remained thoroughly uninteresting. British Rails formed one of the more subdued groups, but while the increased fares proposal held buyers in check, there was little attempt to reduce commitments, and, therefore, the market was able to preserve a steady appearance. One or two Preferences were inclined to go better, but quotations as a whole were unaltered throughout the day.

Foreign Rails experienced no relief from their recent idleness.

INDUSTRIALS GENERALLY FIRM

Although the volume of business in Industrials still left much to be desired, firmness was displayed by most sections, and price changes in the majority of cases were once more in the upward direction.

Less interest was taken in Breweries, and the only change of importance was a loss of 1/- in Courages. Guinness remained at 65/6. Tobaccos commanded only a moderate amount of attention, and, while B.A.T.'s gained 1/16, "Imps" were down to this extent.

Aircrafts were in some demand following the good Blackburn report. Bristols and Parnalls each rose 6d. and Hawker Siddeleys also strengthened. Motors were firm, Austins rising 1/- and Standards gaining 9d.

Firmness continued to be displayed by Iron, Coal and Steel shares. Pressed Steels were prominent, advancing 2/3. Tube Investments rose 1/16, and gains were also shown by Babcock and Wilcox, Bolsovers, Neepsend and Powell Duffryn. Exceptions were Whitehead Irons and Wm. Cory which were 1/16 easier. Vickers repeated 13/-.

Electricals provided little of interest, and there were no changes among Supply shares. In the Equipment section British Insulated were dull, falling ⅛, and slightly lower prices ruled for Associated, Crompton Parkinsons and English. In the Stores group Woolworths came into good request and improved 1/-. Harrods were also 1/- up, and Marks and Spencer gained 6d.

Elsewhere Borax Deferred, London Brick, Nairns, and Pinchin Johnsons responded to a moderate demand. Imperial Chemicals and Dunlops lost the turn, but "Emmies" were 3d. better.

MINES FIRM

Yesterday's behaviour of Mining shares was much the same as had been seen on Monday. Kaffirs continued to claim most attention, and on renewed support on Cape and local account prices further made headway. In the dividend payers, City Deep were again notably favoured, finishing 1/16 higher, and Simmers jumped 7½d. to 17/7½. Vogels at 21/3 reflected further good buying, and "Sallies" were prominent with a rise of ⅛ at 4 1/16. East Geduld at 9 were also a strong spot, and others to close usefully higher included Consolidated Main Reef, Knights, Robinson Deep, Rose Deep, Van Dyk, West Springs and the two Daggas. Although Ventersport at 1 13/16 continued to hang fire, other Far Western Rand shares generally made good headway. W. Reefs were another 6d. higher at 15/6, W. Holdings put on 9d. to 9/-, and West Wits hardened a fraction to 2⅜. Blyvoor at 4/9 showed to advantage.

Other Gold shares were quietly firm, with improvements in Ariston, Bibiani and Kwahu in the West African section; but it was again left to the Rhodesian Coppers to provide what interest there was in the Base Metal departments. Here prices went ahead sharply during the earlier dealings, but initial "bear" covering appeared to have been in a sizeable measure responsible, and the early advance was not fully held. Thus Rhoanglos closed unchanged at 14/- after touching 14/6, and finally Rhokanas were merely the turn harder at 7 1/16. Selection Trusts at 6/9 were also a shade firmer.

Tin shares remained neglected, the only quotable changes being fractional gains in Bangrin and Maxeni, and Lead Zincs did not vary.

There was more interest than formerly in Diamonds, De Beers Deferred and Preference both finishing ½ higher at 3⅞ and 7 respectively, while Anglo-Trusts rallied to 1 1/16 and "Casts" to 7/6. Cons. Diamonds Ordinary and Preference were also a few pence harder.

OILS AND RUBBERS

Conditions in the Oil Share market were much the same as on Monday, business all round being on an extremely small scale. In the absence of selling pressure, however the tone was steady to firm. Anglo-Iranians were unaffected by the meeting, the price remaining at 1⅜. There were again buyers in a small way of Shells at 1⅝. Burmahs after easing to 2 1/32, rallied, to close rather buyers at 2 1/16. There was little doing in the Preference Shares of leading companies, among which Anglo-Iranian Mines fell 6d. to 21/-.

Trinidad issues preserved a satisfactory tendency despite a small volume of business. Leaseholds touched 3¼, but rallied, to finish unchanged at 3 5/16, and Apex were also unaltered at 22/-, after having been 21/9. Trinidad Petroleum Developments continued in request, and further improved 6d. to 43/-.

Elsewhere there was barely sufficient business to test prices, and the only quotable change was a small loss in Anglo-Ecuadorians at 14/6.

Conditions in the Rubber Share market failed to improve yesterday. As on Monday, business involved only modest lines of a limited number of issues, and prices were rarely altered. The tone of the market was described as steady.

DIVIDENDS AND REPORTS

Aeroplane and Motor Aluminium Castings.—Profit, £35,607 (against £37,879); net profit, £18,607 (against £25,379); Ordinary dividend for year 15 p.c. (same); forward, £18,459 (against £8,477), after placing £10,000 to general reserve.

Angola Diamond Co.—Profits show a slight improvement on those of 1938, the net figure of £137,710 comparing with £132,997, and, after placing £12,930 to the legal reserve, there is a balance of £124,780. A dividend of 5 p.c., the same as a year ago, has already been paid, and it is proposed to carry forward the surplus of £89,118.

British Cellynd.—Profit on trading, £3,508 (loss £1,157); net profit, £1,325. This deducted from £2,472 leaves £1,147 debit forward.

County of London Electric Supply.—Interim maintained at 3 per cent.

Dickins and Jones, Ltd.—No interim dividend is being declared in respect of the year ending January 31, 1941. Last year there was an interim of 5 p.c., but there was no final distribution.

Flower and Sons.—The interim dividend 5 per cent., less tax (same).

Folland Aircraft.—Final dividend of 5 per cent., maintaining the year's total at 8 per cent.

George Mallinson and Sons.—Interim dividend of 7½ p.c., less tax, on Ordinary (same).

John Barker and Co., Ltd.—Interim dividends for the half-year ended 31st July, 1940, at the rate of 5½ p.c. per annum on the 5½ p.c. Preference shares and at the rate of 6 p.c. per annum on the 6 p.c. Preference shares. In view of the prevailing uncertainty of trading conditions, the directors have considered it advisable to defer consideration of the payment of a dividend on the Ordinary shares until the result of the year's trading has been ascertained.

Rawlings Bros.—Net profit, £5,692; Ordinary dividend of 7½ p.c.; forward, £3,736.

Selecta Gramophones.—Trading profit, £6,421 (against £5,687); net profit, £2,799 (against £3,391); Ordinary dividend 5 p.c. (same); forward, £1,981 (against £1,932).

KRUSCHEN QUIZ
No. 10

1. Which doctors fought a duel, and why?
In 1750 Dr. John Williams and Dr. Parker Bennett, both of Jamaica, quarrelled over the value of purgation, which in those days was considered the best treatment for many illnesses. A duel followed, with swords and pistols, in which both doctors were killed.

2. Why is purging dangerous?
"A good clear-out" every so often by the forcing action of a strong laxative (in other words a purgative) is liable to damage the delicate muscular machinery which controls natural evacuation.

3. What is a safe laxative?
Medical opinion today supports mineral salts as the safest laxative. Vegetable oil and chemical laxatives are not as safe.

4. Is Kruschen a mineral salt?
Kruschen is not just one mineral salt but a balanced combination, each in its exact proportion, of six mineral salts.

5. What is the action of Kruschen?
Kruschen acts in two ways. It is a diuretic, flushing and stimulating the kidneys to do their work of expelling poisons into the blood-stream. It also acts as a laxative by keeping waste matter in the colon moist and moving. Kruschen costs 1/9 a bottle.

DUBLIN DISTRICT COURT

A MONEYLENDER'S LICENCE

JUSTICE AND A LETTER

(BEFORE MR. LITTLE.)

Samuel Horwich, 53 Middle Abbey street, Dublin, applied for a renewal of his moneylender's licence. The application was opposed by Mr. George Griffin, 7 Slane road, Kimmage.

Mr. D. Bell (instructed by Mr. M. E. Veale), appearing for the objector, said that his client had received a letter purporting to come from Mr. Horwich.

The letter, which was read by Mr. Little, said: "Sir,—I wish to warn you that you must stop your 'racket ways' of trying to collect my clients' payment cards. May I point out to you that not one of my clients wish to have anything to do with your methods? You are nothing but a curse to the community, a blackguard and a thief of the first magnitude, and I do not care what use you make of my letter.

"If I wish to deduct interest on a loan, I can do so, and don't need your rotten ways of advice. My method of business is, and I am not afraid to state it openly, I deduct 5s. interest on a £1 loan, giving client 15s., and this is done by 95 per cent. of lenders, other sums pro rata. So now, sir, that you have my method, you can go to the devil, as none of my clients will listen to you or your bullying agents.

"Dublin poor will always need us in spite of you, and let it be known, in spite of the silly Act we have to abide by. Nobody could, or can, abide by it, and we can carry on, Act or no Act, so you damned blackmailer, keep away from us lenders.

"Yours, one who defies you openly."

Mr. C. S. Campbell, K.C., with whom was Mr. S. Criven, instructed by Mr. V. Elyan, appearing for the applicant, said that he knew nothing about this document and had not seen it. He was informed that on the date this document was sent Mr. Horwich was not in the country.

Mr. Horwich, in evidence, said that on November 4th, 1939, the date of the letter, he was staying with his son, who was a doctor in London. He had not seen the letter. It was not in his handwriting nor was it in the handwriting of those who were in charge of his office while he was away. He pointed out that his name was incorrectly spelt, as Herwitz, in the letter.

Mr. Little said that Mr. Griffin was discharging a public duty, because it was a great virtue for a man to bear witness to that corporative association which was singularly absent in this country. Through a sense of civic responsibility, Mr. Griffin appeared before him directed only by that responsibility and his anxiety for the poor. As long as he appeared before him, Mr. Griffin would always receive the respect he was entitled to. In his activity he subjected himself to the malice of third parties, suggested, perhaps, by the lash of lost integrity in themselves. He must suffer these wounds gladly if these people wrote letters to him. He was satisfied that the letter was not written by Mr. Horwich, and he could not for a moment entertain that suggestion.

The application was granted.

ROYAL HOSPITAL FOR INCURABLES.

A meeting of the Board of Governors of the Royal Hospital for Incurables was held at the hospital on Tuesday morning, 20th inst., at 9.30 o'clock, Sir Walter H Boyd, Bart., K.C. (Chairman) presiding. There were 160 Governors present at this meeting.

The proceedings of the last meeting of the Board were read, confirmed and signed. Apologies were received from a number of Governors unable to be present.

Mrs. Cantwell, Mrs. St. Leger Evans, Messrs. Denis Barrett and A. S. Powderly, having kindly consented to act, were appointed Visiting Governors for the month.

The executors of the late Mrs. E. Potter nominated Mr. John P. Carrigan, who was unanimously elected a Life Governor.

The election of patients was then proceeded with. Eight names appeared on the printed list, and the following, having obtained the highest number of votes, were declared duly elected:—Alfred D. Duffy, Peter Kehoe.

The Board adjourned to Tuesday, 17th September, when an election for female patients will take place.

TO OWNERS OF GARDENS.

RARE GLADIOLI BLOOMS

Everybody stopped to admire the display of gladioli Messrs. William Power and Co., of Waterford, gave yesterday in the window of the N.A.I.D.A. showrooms, 3 St. Stephen's Green, Dublin. There were about two dozen varieties of new and rare gladioli blooms on view. It was a wonderfully beautiful show. Some of the more remarkable specimens were: "Atlas," a purple with blood red in the centre of the blossom; "Standchen," a flame-toned flower; "Pfitzer's Masterpiece," of salmon pink, and the sweetly soft "Blue Pearl."

To-day more crowds will be attracted by other varieties which Messrs. Power and Co. propose to show throughout the week.

DEATH SENTENCE FOR SHOOTING OF DETECTIVE

TRIAL BY MILITARY COURT IN DUBLIN

PATRICK McGRATH and Thomas Green, alias Francis Hart, appeared before the new Military Court set up under the Emergency Powers (No. 41) Order, sitting in Collins Barracks, Dublin, yesterday, charged with the murder of Detective Officer Richard Hyland at Rathgar road on 16th August, 1940.

Both the accused men refused to plead, and on the direction of the Court the plea of "Not guilty" was entered.

Green was carried into Court on a stretcher, suffering from a gunshot wound in the right leg. He was able to sit upright in a chair in the dock.

The accused men were found guilty and sentenced to be shot.

A Guard gave evidence that on 19th August he served on both the accused men a copy of the charge and a summary of the evidence.

The Governor of Arbour Hill Military Prison said that the two accused men were in his custody. He had not got from either of them any request for the purpose of giving them facilities to prepare their defence. He spoke to both on the afternoon of their admission to Arbour Hill, and told them he would grant them any facilities they wanted in connection with their defence. They both told him they did not want any assistance.

The charge was then read over to the accused men.

"A MERCILESS FUSILLADE"

Mr J. A. McCarthy, K.C., who, with Mr. G. Murnaghan (instructed by Mr. D. O'Donovan, Chief State Solicitor's Office), prosecuted, said: Shortly after 8 o'clock on Friday morning, 16th August last, a party of detective Gardai, under the control and charge of the late Detective Sergeant McKeown, visited Rathgar road for the purpose of carrying out, under the Offences Against the State Act, a search of the premises, No. 98a Rathgar road. Before twenty minutes had passed from the time of their arrival at No. 98a three of those Garda had been subjected to a merciless fusillade of fire at point-blank range that dealt out death to Detective Garda Hyland and Detective Sergeant McKeown, and from which Detective Garda Brady now lies dangerously wounded in hospital.

Detective Garda Hyland and Detective Sergeant McKeown were murdered in the prime of life; loyal servants of the State, they were murdered in the execution of their duty to the people and to the State. The accused men are before this Court charged with responsibility for that crime. The fact and circumstances of this ghastly tragedy will, if accepted by this Court, establish beyond reasonable doubt that responsibility, and all the tests that the law imposes, and which must in all circumstances be applied with particular scrupulousness and care in a case of this gravity, will be answered by the evidence that will be before the Court. To consider these facts will not need any comment from me Their clarity carries the comment.

The Gardai officers arrived by car, which stopped somewhere on the Rathmines side of 98a. Perhaps a particularly vigilant person keeping observance from the premises would have seen the car, but he could not say, and was not suggesting that there was any evidence of that.

GIRL AT DOOR

Sergeant McKeown, Guard Hyland and Guard Brady called into the recess, and stood there for some time, and two other Gardai went to the rear of the premises. The bell attached to the front door was rung, but it was not answered for about ten minutes. Then a girl came to the door, said something, but she did not open it. She returned, and went out of the shop portion of the premises, and, immediately following that, noise and movement were heard from inside. It seemed to come from behind the partition. Sergeant McKeown had gone round to the rear to interview the officers there, and, in fact, interviewed them. He returned and took up again his position in the recess at the door. The Guards then saw a boy approach the door. He did not hurry about opening it, but rather delayed. There were some bottles of milk in the entrance. Finally Guard Hyland pushed the boy, after he had taken off whatever was securing or fastening the door or opened the lock. The three Guards entered. Guards Hyland and Brady went first, and Detective Sergeant McKeown followed. The boy went behind the counter, and asked them for their identification cards. They announced that they were police officers. Immediately the three police officers moved towards the partition—at a time when they were only seven feet away—this death-dealing, withering burst of gunfire came from behind the partition.

SEVEN BULLET WOUNDS

It would be submitted that the delay in opening the door, the further delay by the boy after he came to the door, and that the further delay after the Guards got immediately inside was deliberate and for the purpose of giving those inside an opportunity of getting ready to discharge their deadly fusillade. The two Guards rushed towards the partition, to be met with this fire. Guard Hyland received seven bullet wounds. Sergeant McKeown received one bullet wound. Guard Hyland's bullet wounds were all on the left side, and he collapsed inside the door. Sergeant McKeown rushed out of the house carrying a bullet in his back. The detective officers at the rere heard the shooting and came round, and the first of them saw Sergeant McKeown moving in Terenure direction.

Guard Brady endeavoured to stagger out, and collapsed on the recess or the street outside. Guard Wilmot saw Sergeant McKeown going, and the sergeant waved to him. Guard Wilmot went to the street, and while he was standing there, more or less in front of No. 99, he saw three persons—of whom the accused men are two—leaving the house 98a. These men must have come over the almost dead body of Guard Hyland, because he died shortly afterwards. Guard Brady was also lying there wounded. Of the three men, one who would be identified as the accused man, Thomas Green, was carrying a Thompson submachine gun; another was the accused man, Patrick McGrath. The three men, followed by two Guards, ran down Rathgar road and into Wesley road, which is the first turn on the left. They ran on the roadway, and one Guard following fired six shots from his revolver and wounded Thomas Green.

THE CHASE

During the chase in Wesley road there was a motor car standing outside a house, and Green, carrying his machine-gun, made a movement as if to take cover with his machine-gun behind the motor car. A Guard fired and hit the windscreen of the car, and Green continued on down Wesley road. The three men ran through a narrow pathway into Rathgar avenue. When the Guards got into Rathgar avenue the only person seen was the boy running in Harold's Cross direction The other two had disappeared. It transpired that they had gone in through the gateway of No. 56, through the house and into a laneway at the back leading to Winton avenue. One Guard followed, and when he got to the laneway the two prisoners were there, but the machine-gun was gone. On several occasions from the time they left the house 98a they had been called on to halt, and when the Guard saw them in the lane he gave them a final order: "Hands up!" The men obeyed then and were taken into custody. When Patrick McGrath was searched he had in his right-hand trousers pocket a fully-loaded .45 Webley revolver. There was a mark of blood on his right hand, and the cartridges loaded in the revolver were stained with what appeared to be blood. The revolver bore signs of recent use. When the two prisoners were brought back Green was asked where was the Thompson sub-machine-gun. A search was made, and the sub-machine-gun was found inside the garden of No. 57, just where the accused man cut on Rathgar avenue. He had obviously thrown the gun over the wall in his attempt to escape. It was found cocked and with the safety catch off. It showed signs of recent use, so much so that any further use of it was likely to cause it to burst. Seven rounds were in the magazine. Evidence would be given that two of the bullets taken out of Guard Hyland's body were fired out of the machine-gun.

"SHOT TWO LEADERS"

The wounding of Thomas Green caused him to be taken into the house 20 Wesley road, and he was dressed by a doctor, who was called by the resident of the house. While Green was there he was approached by Patrick McGrath, who shook him by the hand and said "Congratulations!" Patrick McGrath was then taken into custody at a time when the Guards did not know that anybody was dead. All they knew was that some one had been shot. On the journey to the Bridewell McGrath said: "I am Patrick McGrath. You got the spoils this morning. I am surprised at you men coming to a house where there are Republican soldiers, knowing that they were armed. You have started the shooting by shooting two of our leaders. We are taking no chance now."

That statement, said Mr. McCarthy, was not made in absolute sequence. It was made without any interruption, made without any talk, made—one part of it now and one part of it thirty seconds afterwards. There was no request, no questions—it was entirely volunteered by Patrick McGrath himself.

McGrath (from the dock)—I would like to correct that statement.

President of Court—You will get an opportunity of doing so when it is given in evidence.

Proceeding, Mr. McCarthy said that on going into the house 98A the police found that in the front room three people at least had been sleeping the night before. There were three beds there, which showed signs of recent use. There was also one or two couches, but whether they had been used for sleeping or not he could not say. A room behind the bedroom contained a number of articles in connection with wireless—a wireless transmitting set. The room behind had evidence of being occupied by a young lady. In the shop and behind the partition there were found 16 cartridge shells from a Thompson gun and six spent bullets from a Webley revolver. There was found in this room one German Mauser pistol, one short parabellum pistol, one machine-gun stock, one Thompson machine-gun drum, one .38 nickel-plated revolver, eight rounds of Peter the Painter ammunition, one long Webley revolver, minus the stock; 56 rounds .45 revolver ammunition, one empty magazine for a Thompson gun, and the 22 spent bullets found on the floor of the shop premises.

As well as that there were found a number of other articles which, on their face, obviously associated them with activities of an illegal character, such as gun practice, drilling and bombing, and matters of that kind.

The prosecution suggested to the Court that in that house, as far as the evidence indicated, there was something in the nature of a minor arsenal, controlled by the two accused men, at least, who were standing before the Court.

It is submitted that when the Guards went there there was a deliberate plan by those men to shoot their way to freedom at all hazards, to resist arrest by force of arms, or to shoot first and then escape—to do it without warning, without notice, and with a complete numbness in regard to the lives of the people who were in that shop behind the door. One shot was fired by the three Guards. The shot was fired by Detective Officer Hyland out of the .38 revolver which bedded itself in the partition of the house. The other two Guards were armed with .45 revolvers, but never drew them, or if they did draw them they never fired. If the Court was satisfied that there was this deliberate plan to shoot down and escape, or to escape by shooting, to resist arrest, it was of no consequence, as far as the guilt was concerned, who fired the fatal shot.

MACHINE-GUN BULLETS

Everyone who took part in this conspiracy to resist arrest by arms or to shoot their way to liberty is liable for the consequence of the act of the others, whether they themselves fired the shot or not. Only two bullets were taken from the body of Guard Hyland, and another was taken from his clothes. These were all bullets from a Thompson machine gun. What caused the other five entrance wounds or what class of bullet the prosecution was unable to say. The bullet that killed Sergeant McKeown was unquestionably a bullet fired from a Webley revolver, and it might well be that each marksman in this ambushing party selected out his own victim and fired accordingly. But division of targets was not a division of responsibility.

Concluding, Mr. McCarthy said that they must take care that no feelings of outraged humanity would damage their judgment or affect the calm and cool consideration of every fact in this case. The graver the charge the more it must be approached with calmness and consideration. They, in the discharge of their duty to the people, did not want to exaggerate or minimise anything.. He asked the Court to apply all the legal principles applicable to this and every other case; to take care that whilst justice must be done to the community, and the community protected, likewise justice must be done to the accused persons, and in the defence of this case, in a grave charge of this kind, the accused men must have the benefit of any reasonable doubt, while the State, for its part, must prove its case beyond all reasonable doubt.

Gardai attached to the mapping and photographic section of the Gardai Technical Branch, gave evidence regarding maps made and photographs taken at 98a Rathgar road.

A doctor attached to the Meath Hospital said that Detective Officer Michael Brady was under his care. He would not be fit to be moved for about ten days, but would be able to make a statement to the Court if the Court went to the hospital.

The Court then adjourned to the Meath Hospital.

AT THE MEATH HOSPITAL

INJURED DETECTIVE'S EVIDENCE

Escorted by military heavily armed, in motor lorries, the prisoners were taken to the hospital. Here the Court assembled in one of the wards, into which the injured detective Brady was wheeled in a bed. He gave his evidence in a very low voice.

Examined by Mr. McCarthy, he said that the police car stopped at Rathgar road, about thirty yards from the shop. Detective Sergeant McKeown, Detective Officer Hyland and himself approached the front entrance of the house, 98A. The Detective Officer rang an electric bell at the front door. About five minutes elapsed, and a girl came to the door. She said something, but did not open the door. Sergeant McKeown then went to the back of the shop, leaving Detective Officer Hyland and him in the doorway. While the sergeant was away he (witness) heard a noise, apparently overhead in the shop. It went on for three or four minutes. He heard steps on the stairs inside the shop. Sergeant McKeown came back shortly afterwards, and about two minutes later a boy came to the door. He appeared to be about fifteen or sixteen years old, and came from the inside of the shop. The boy opened the door, and asked what did they want.

"We told him," continued witness "that we were police officers, and he bent down to take up six bottles of milk from outside the door."

Detective Officer Hyland told him to leave the milk where it was, and we backed the boy into the shop. The boy then stood with his hand on the door of the shop, and he asked us for our authority. Detective Officer Hyland showed him his identification card. The boy seemed nervous. He pushed him back towards the counter, and Detective Officer Hyland and myself proceeded to get further into the shop. There was a partition between the shop, which led to a back entrance. Detective Officer Hyland and myself left Detective Sergeant McKeown and the boy and approached the partition. As I got inside the partition in front of Detective Officer Hyland there was a burst of fire and I saw a form, and that is all I remember. I crawled out from the shop to the pathway.

Mr. McCarthy—Were you armed?—I was.

Mr. McCarthy (handing witness a revolver)—Can you identify that as the gun that you had?—I can. That is my gun.

Was it loaded that morning?—I had it fully loaded with six rounds.

Did you fire any shot?—I did not.

Did Detective Sergeant McKeown or Detective Officer Hyland fire a shot?—I cannot say if they did.

This concluded the witness's evidence.

The President—How are you feeling?—I have some pains.

The President—I hope you have a very speedy recovery.

Mr. McCarthy—We all join in that.

"THANK YOU"

Detective Officer Brady (feebly raising his hand in salute)—Thank you.

The court then returned to Collins Barracks and the hearing was continued.

A detective Garda who was in the party with Detective Sergeant McKeown and Detective Garda Hyland, gave evidence that they went to the house, 98A Rathgar road, about 7.45 a.m., on the 16th inst. On the instructions of Detective Sergeant McKeown, he and another detective Garda went round to the back of the house and took up positions there. After about ten minutes Detective Sergeant McKeown came round to them and had a conversation with them. Detective Sergeant McKeown returned to the front of the house then.

"In a matter of a few minutes," continued the witness, "I heard the first shots coming from the front of the house. There was a burst of fire. I immediately went round to the side of the house, and as I got to the gate I saw Detective Sergeant McKeown running in the direction of Terenure and giving some sign to me with his hand which I did not interpret."

Witness went on to say that he had a conversation with a milkman who was nearby, and while he was there talking he saw three men rush out from the house. He was about eight or ten yards away at the time. One of the men had a Thompson sub-machine-gun in his hand. None of the others appeared to be armed at that time. The men ran off in the direction of Rathmines, and he and the other detective Garda ran after them, calling on them to halt. The other detective Garda fired on the men just as they reached Wesley avenue corner. He and witness continued to call on the men to halt and to fire on them. There was a car parked in Wesley avenue, facing in the direction of Rathgar, and the man with the Thompson gun made as if to get behind it. Witness shot at him, and the bullet struck the windscreen of the car. Witness continued to fire, and shortly after that he noticed that the man was limping. The other detective Garda reached the other end of Wesley avenue first, and when witness arrived there he only saw one of the men running in the direction of Rathgar avenue. Witness did not see the other detective Garda, but later he heard him call. Witness went to where the call came from—a lane at the back of Winton avenue. When he arrived there he saw two of the three men he had seen running out of the house.

THE THOMPSON GUN

The fair-haired man, who had the Thompson gun, was the accused, Thomas Green, and the other man was Patrick McGrath, whom he also saw in the dock there. Witness searched Patrick McGrath, and found in his right-hand trousers pocket a fully loaded long Webley revolver. Witness noticed that McGrath's hand was bleeding, and on examining the ammunition in the revolver he found it to be bloodstained. He searched Green, but found no firearms on him. When the witness, the other detective Garda and the two prisoners were proceeding along Rathgar avenue the other Detective Garda said to Green: "Where is the gun?" Green replied: "Somewhere about here." At the request of the other Detective Garda, a civilian searched the hedge in a garden near by, and found the Thompson gun (produced).

Witness was one of the party of Guards who conveyed McGrath to the Bridewell. Witness asked him one question—Was there anyone else in the house?—to which McGrath replied that there was a girl. Witness thought that there were one or two questions asked of McGrath. McGrath said that they "had got the spoils this morning," and that there were two or three of their leaders shot and wounded, and that they had plenty of arms and were taking no chances.

A second Detective Garda, who was stationed at the rear of the house, 98a, said that he first heard the sound of footsteps from the house and then running water. Sergeant McKeown came round to the back, stayed for about half a minute, and went back again. After an interval of a minute or two he heard shots, and his companion (the previous witness) went round to the front. He remained at the back until he heard shouts from his companion. He then went round to the front, and saw three men running along Rathgar road. One of the men, whom he identified as Green, had a Thompson machine-gun, and another, whom he picked out as McGrath, had a long Webley revolver. The other detective shouted at the men to halt, but they ran on and turned into Wesley avenue. As they turned he (witness) fired two shots. He and his companion followed, and saw the men running. He fired four more shots. The men ran through a passage into Rathgar avenue, but had disappeared when he got there.

A civilian spoke to him, and in consequence he went through the garden of the house, No. 56, through the back, and into the garden at the back. Some wire netting was crushed down as if someone had crossed. He went over the wire, into a laneway, and round a bend to the right, where he saw two men whom he called on to put their "hands up." They did so. He identified them as the men whom he had seen running away. He then shouted for his fellow-detective, who came along. He told him to search the men, and saw him take a long revolver from McGrath, as well as nine rounds of ammunition. Green was also searched for firearms, but none was found on him.

"YOU GOT THE SPOILS"

The witness said that he asked a civilian to look in the garden, and, from the top of a hedge, this man took the Thompson machine-gun. It was cocked, the rafety catch was off, and there were seven rounds of ammunition in the magazine. With his fellow-detective he took the two prisoners to the house, 20 Wesley avenue, where Green was attended to. At that time he (witness) had not been back to 98A Rathgar road, and did not know of the fatal shootings. He was in the party that conveyed McGrath to the Bridewell. He was sitting in front of the car beside the driver, and he looked back at McGrath, who said: "You got the spoils this morning." He did not ask McGrath any questions. At the Bridewell two more rounds of .45 ammunition were found on McGrath. He noticed that the gun taken from McGrath had been recently fired and that there were blood stains on some of the bullets in it.

Civilian witnesses gave evidence of hearing shots and seeing men running, followed by others. One of these witnesses said that, at the request of detectives, he carried out a search and found a Thompson machine-gun in a hedge of a garden at Rathgar avenue. He handed the gun to the detectives.

A surgeon at the Meath Hospital said that he performed an operation on Detective Sergeant McKeown, and took a bullet from the left-hand side of the abdomen. The bullet had entered on the right-hand side of the abdomen below the ribs. Death was due to hæmorrhage and peritonitis.

A Guard said that when he went to the scene of the shooting he saw another Guard attending to a man who was wounded, in the door of 98A Rathgar road. The man appeared to be in great pain and was lying face downward, with a gun in his hand.

He (witness) ran for the ambulance, returned and waited for it to arrive. A priest also came. Another man was also wounded inside the door. He knew now that this was Detective Officer Hyland. He was in a sitting position inside the door and appeared to be dead.

Another Guard said that he saw Detective Officer Brady lying in the hall of 98A. He had a gun in his hand. Witness asked him for it and he gave it to him. It was fully loaded. He saw Detective Officer Hyland partly on his knees and in a dying condition. He sent for the priest and ambulance, and 'phoned the Detective Branch.

LOADED REVOLVER

The witness said that in the kitchen of the house he found a revolver on a couch fully loaded. Before he left he found six empty cartridge shells in a room off the shop, three spent bullets, and an empty magazine for a Thompson gun. Later he went to 20 Wesley road, where he saw the two accused men. One of them was lying on a couch with blood coming through his right trouser leg. In the porch outside the shop at Rathgar road he picked up a blue felt hat, and inside the door beside Detective Officer Hyland he picked up a grey felt hat which had two bullet marks, one in the front and the other at the back. He identified the hat which was produced.

A Garda said that he saw eight bullet holes in the glass window facing the road and eight more in the glass porch. Beside the man who was lying at the back of the door he found a revolver one bullet of which had been discharged. It contained five live rounds. The man beside whom the revolver was lying was Detective Officer Hyland. He felt him and he was warm, but did not show any sign of life.

GERMAN MAUSER

A Detective Garda told how in a bedroom in 98a Rathgar road he found a parcel, which contained an unloaded German Mauser revolver, an unloaded parabellum revolver, a Thompson gun drum, and the stock of a machine gun. The weapons were wrapped in a duster and in a patched tablecloth. On the mantelpiece in the bedroom he found an unloaded nickle-plated revolver, and near it were eight rounds of "Peter the Painter" ammunition. He was handed the magazine of a Thompson gun which had been found by another Guard.

A schoolboy who found two bullets on the roadway on the opposite side of the road from the shop where the shooting took place gave evidence of handing them to the Guards.

A detective Garda gave evidence of having found in the house two typewriters and a typing machine.

A detective Garda said that on the way to the Bridewell, and without anyone asking any questions, McGrath said: "I suppose you men don't know who I am. I am Patrick McGrath."

Later to another detective officer, without being asked any questions, he said: "You got the spoils this morning. I am surprised at you men coming to a house where there are Republican soldiers, knowing that they are armed." On the way to the cells he said: "You men shot the last two of our leaders who were arrested."

When searched, they found on him a number of keys, one of which fitted the hall door leading up the stairs at 98a Rathgar road, and there was also found on him two rounds of .45 ammunition and £5 0s. 3d. in cash.

Another detective officer said that when McGrath was being taken from the house in Wesley road to the Bridewell he shook hands with Green and said: "Good-bye." He said something else which witness could not catch.

A Garda officer said that he was handed a Thompson gun of the 1921 model, with the number obliterated. There were seven rounds in the magazine. He was also handed a long Webley .45 revolver, loaded in six chambers, and also nine round of .45 ammunition.

A doctor from the Meath Hospital said that Detective Officer Hyland was dead on admission to the hospital.

Evidence was given by the doctor who performed the post-mortem examination on Detective Officer Hyland. He found seven entrance wounds and five exit wounds. Death from any one of four of these wounds would be very rapid.

Death from the other three would have occurred some time later. The cause of death was shock and hemorrhage, caused by bullet wounds.

THE BULLETS

An expert from the ballistics branch of the Garda said that he examined the 16 Thompson gun cartridge cases found at 98A Rathgar road, and also the two bullets taken from the body of Detective Officer Hyland. All these bullets had been fired from the Thompson machine-gun (produced). The bullet taken from the body of Detective Sergeant McKeown had on examination been found to have been fired from the Webley revolver found on Patrick McGrath.

A Garda officer said that he had found in the middle room of the house at Rathgar road a number of dry batteries and other wireless parts.

Another Garda officer said that he visited Mountjoy Hospital on August 16th, where the accused man, Thomas Green, alias Francis Hart, was in custody. He had recognised him from a photograph as a man he had previously seen. He later procured that photograph again visited the prisoner. I told him, said witness, that I was a police officer and wanted to ask him some questions. I produced the photograph of a man known as Francis Hart and said, "Is that your photograph?" He said, "It is." I said "Is Francis Hart your correct name?" He said, "It is." I said then, "Where are you from—what is your address?" He made no reply.

Mr. McCarthy said that that completed the State's case.

The President of the Court asked each of the prisoners in turn if he wished to call witnesses, or give any evidence or to make any statement.

Both the prisoners maintained silence.

THE JUDGMENT

The Court then retired to consider its verdict. After an absence of fifteen minutes the Court resumed, and the President announced that they had found both the accused men guilty of the charge preferred against them.

The judgment was announced in the following terms:—"The Court find you . . . guilty of the murder of Richard Hyland on the 16th day of August, 1940; and the order and sentence of this Court is that you . . . suffer death by shooting.

"A record of the proceedings of this trial, and the finding and sentence of this Military Court, will be transmitted to the Government, and if the Government decide to decline to remit or commute the sentence such decision shall be conveyed to the Adjutant-General, who will, as soon as may be, give all the necessary directions for the execution of such sentence. The said directions of the Adjutant-General must be complied with not later than forty-eight hours after such directions are given."

The prisoners were removed to Arbour Hill.

THE WORD WE KEEP AT HOME

THERE'S one word we have in Irish which is like the Bird of Paradise—it dies if it leaves its native land. That word is Flaitheaimhlach—Prince-like—generous to a fault. Either the inhabitants of other lands can't get their tongues round it or their hospitality is on a less ambitious scale.

It is the pride of an Irishman to lavish on his guest the best he can command in entertainment, food and drink. For instance, in Ireland gin and lime means gin and Rose's Lime Juice. For Rose's is the pure juice of the lime and nothing else. And even if the guest does not choose gin and lime for a social evening—a glass of straight Rose's to wind up with frees the morrow from what the whole world knows as a hangover.

MEDICAL OFFICER THANKED

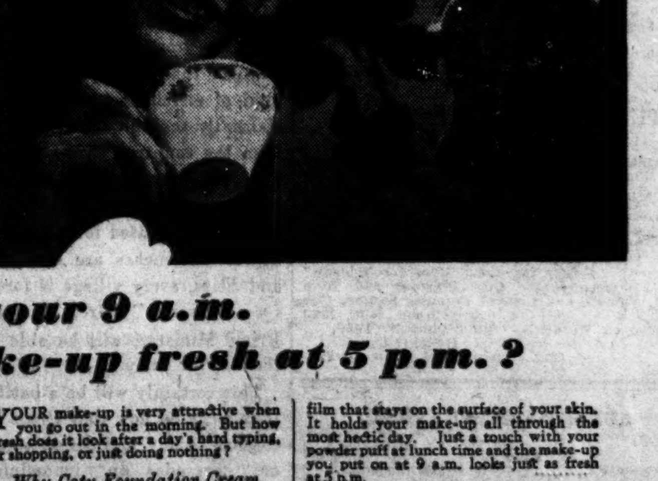

The annual report of the County Dublin Medical Officer, Dr. J. A. Harbison, on the health and sanitary conditions of the county during 1939, with a report on school medical service, was submitted and adopted yesterday at the meeting of the County Dublin Board of Health.

Mr. P. Belton, T.D., proposed that the Board record its appreciation of the work done by Dr Harbison. He said that Dr. Harbison's annual report for 1939 was the most valuable document of its kind. No other county in the country had produced such a record of social services.

Referring to the veterinary officer's report, Mr. Belton spoke of it in laudatory terms, and remarked that more appreciation should be shown by the Government of the services established in County Dublin.

Mrs. Mulvey seconded the motion, which was adopted.

It was decided to circulate the report to parish councils and other public bodies in the county.

Is your 9 a.m. make-up fresh at 5 p.m.?

YOUR make-up is very attractive when you go out in the morning. But how fresh does it look after a day's hard typing, or shopping, or just doing nothing?

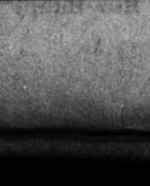

Why Coty Foundation Cream does not "vanish"

If cream sinks into pores, leaving nothing to hold powder and rouge on the surface of your skin, your face will quickly develop the most unflattering shine.

Coty Foundation Cream does not vanish, it forms a non-greasy, invisible film that stays on the surface of your skin. It holds your make-up all through the most hectic day. Just a touch with your powder puff at lunch time and the make-up you put on at 9 a.m. looks just as fresh at 5 p.m.

Protects your skin too

Another advantage of Coty Foundation Cream is that it doesn't draw dirt and cosmetics into pores as vanishing creams do. Instead, its protective film keeps out dust, guards the beauty of your skin against roughening wind and drying sun. At all chemists and beauty counters. Jars 4/3. Handbag tubes 1/3 and 2/-.

A Battle of Giants

If Mr. Winston Churchill possessed no other qualities, he has a genius for the inspiring of confidence. Since the present war began his speeches, with very few exceptions, have been—to use a hackneyed, but expressive term—trumpet-calls to the British nation. In contrast to the high-toned, but curiously uninspiring, homilies of some of his predecessors in the Premiership, and in contrast to the violent, but ineffective, vapourings of some of his Cabinet colleagues to-day, his speeches have all the appeal of a strong man who is confident of his strength. Yesterday's was no exception. It would have been a good speech if it had been delivered for the benefit of a tired, beaten people; but its effect must have been stimulating in the highest degree to a people which, like the British people at present, feels itself "on top of the wave." The events of the last week have gone far to restore Great Britain's faith in herself. According to any reasonable calculation of casualties, the British have more than held their own against the most formidable attack from the air that any nation has known. It is true that Germany has not yet exerted her full strength, or anything like it, but the British fighting aircraft and ground defences have offered so successful a resistance as to justify the belief that they will be at least as effective when the hour of real trial comes. Mr. Churchill was frankly jubilant when he addressed the House of Commons yesterday. He did not conceal his conviction that Great Britain still is in dire peril, and that she must endure immense tribulations, but he argued that her chance of success not merely was greater than anyone had dared to hope, but that she herself was stronger in every respect than she was at the beginning of the war. British aircraft production, he said, greatly exceeds Germany's, and will be augmented by supplies from America. The Navy is stronger than it was a year ago, and the total of merchant tonnage has risen substantially through the acquisition of ships from the countries over-run by Germany. The Army is more powerful than at any previous time in its history, while the nation is organised for defence to the last degree—"trenches are dug in the towns and cities, every village is fortified, every road is barred." Great Britain, says her Prime Minister, will be able to continue the war for years.

This certainly will be a battle of giants. It is clear by now that Great Britain will consent to any loss rather than surrender or conclude an ignominious peace. Already she has been compelled to withdraw from two of her possessions, the Channel Islands and Somaliland, and the odds are that she will lose more territory—and more important territory—before the war ends. She manifestly has concentrated upon her own defence, and will abandon any part of her Empire, if the worst comes to the worst, rather than weaken herself in the great "battle of Britain." The odds remain heavily in Herr Hitler's favour. In respect of aircraft, he has obtained a long start over the British, and, as our Military Correspondent pointed out yesterday, he can call upon a number of useful factories in France, Italy and Czechoslovakia. The British are not a people to "panic," but neither, as we think, are they a people to indulge in foolish over-confidence. They know that an appalling trial must be faced: they know that the German military mind works on a big scale, and that the offensive will be all the more terrible accordingly as their own defences are powerful; but they are steeling themselves to face the worst, knowing that it will be bad, indeed. Once again time is in their favour. We put little trust in the British hope that the conquered peoples of Europe will rise against their conqueror; yet, if it is true that food supplies in Continental Europe are running low, there is bound to be widespread disorganisation of one sort or another before another year is out, and Germany's task will be correspondingly difficult. America makes no secret of her desire to help the British. Mr. Churchill announced last night that certain British bases off the American coast were being leased to the United States; and this change of hands will release a number of British ships of war for service in more important places, while the chances are that America will provide a quid pro quo in the form of some of her "over-age" destroyers. Herr Hitler is facing the fact that an expanded empire is weaker than a compact one. He now has a very large area to defend, while Great Britain has a very small one, which will become smaller and more compact still if, as is possible, she is forced to withdraw from the Eastern Mediterranean. Mr. Churchill hopes in the fulness of time to take the offensive against Germany, and it must be taken sooner or later if Britain is to win the war; but first she must endure the awful strain of defensive warfare.

Sorrowful Cargoes

Almost every week now we hear that more ship-loads of children have left some British port for other lands beyond the sea and beyond the danger of bombing aeroplanes. Many children already have arrived in Canada, and by now probably are recovering from the first agonies of home-sickness. Many more at this moment are in the trains on their way to foster-parents scattered over the habitable length and breadth of the Dominion. Several ships carrying similar cargoes have landed in New York, and another batch has been taken out to be adopted temporarily by various aunts, uncles and other relatives in the far-away Argentine. As we write, the first ship to Australia is only a day or two out from the port of Sydney, and "some time ago," to quote the vague language of the official statement, another vessel, carrying 480 youngsters from the most vulnerable towns and cities in England, Scotland and Wales, embarked for the same destination. These children, all from grant-aided schools, form the first really big and general evacuation overseas under the Government Evacuation Scheme, and the first of the frequent sailings of the near future. They are on their way to families in all parts of the Commonwealth—about 300 to live with relatives and friends, and the remainder to other, if as yet unknown, friends. However much the children may be enjoying the prospect of this great adventure—and it is an adventure, over which no normal child could fail to be excited—it is easy to imagine the heart-break of their parents. To most mothers this loss of their children will represent something more terrible than anything else which has happened so far in the course of the war. The death of Poland and Holland, the collapse of France and Belgium, the far-away horror of battle, are events which shock in an impersonal kind of way, but the loss of little Willie or little Winnie, even for a year or two, is something to desolate the heart. In sending their children away, however, they know that they are doing what is best for the children.

What most of them do not realise is the great service which unwittingly they may be doing to the British Empire itself. For years past Canada and Australia have been clamouring for more people, and especially for more British emigrants. Neither country, with its present population, is able to develop more than the mere surface of its resources or to reap more than a fraction of its wealth. The population of Australia, it must be remembered, is considerably smaller than the population of Greater London, and on the same basis of comparison the mighty Dominion of Canada is only slightly larger than London. The children who are leaving Britain in such numbers at the present time may expect—and may be expected by their parents—to return at the end of the war; but, if the war should last for more than two or three years, we have not the slightest doubt that many will remain for good, and will make permanent homes for themselves in the new lands. Canada and Australia certainly will be able to offer them prospects and opportunities which they never could hope for at home in the Old Country. Every man and woman in these two Dominions must still be regarded as a pioneer in a young and undeveloped country, and we believe that very many of the children now arriving there as little refugees will remain to form the seed of new and greater populations. It will be a good thing for themselves, for Great Britain, and for the Dominions if they do happen to remain; for, judged impersonally, just as heads of population, Britain has no need of them, while the need of the Dominions is both real and urgent.

Rus in Urbe

The almost forgotten Ally Sloper's Half-Holiday once published a joke about a man who left the country as a boy and spent the rest of his life trying to make enough money to enable him to return. That man differed from the people who leave rural Ireland to dwell in the metropolis; for, if there is one place that they work to avoid, it is the farmland or little village that cradled them. They may return for a week-end or a fortnight in the summer to parade the clothes and the knowledge of the city-dweller, but they recoil from the prospect of permanent residence in a hamlet without a cinema or a house without rows of other houses to keep it company. On a Sunday afternoon, when the Dublin-bred man is making for the seaside or the mountains, the immigrant from the country is making for the city centre, where he appears to find pleasure in the crowds that throng the streets, or sophistication in that club and resthouse for the lonely, the General Post Office. A few days ago a Dublin man returned regretfully to Dublin after a week of peace in a rural retreat, where the days seemed as long and as sweet as childish days. With him was a countryman who had lived in Dublin for ten or twelve years. When they entered the whirl of O'Connell street, with crowds rushing to theatres and picture-houses, with omnibuses and motor cars filling the roadway, with noise and activity replacing the quiet and leisure that they had left behind, the countryman's eyes sparkled and he exclaimed, "Now, can't you understand why country people like to come to Dublin?" The Dublin man may have understood it, but he neither could approve nor appreciate it. It might be possible to bring a great deal of happiness to the people of Ireland by transferring all the country people to the cities and all the city people to the country, were it not for the chaos that would ensue in business and agriculture. In Russia they have experimented with the sending of urban workers to rural homes for some months in every year for health and "cultural" reasons. Some enlightened administration in the future may endeavour to ensure that every citizen of this island shall obtain in his youth the training of both farm and factory, so that, when he sets up a home, he may be fitted to earn a living in town and country alike. A necessary preliminary to the success of any such plan would be the disestablishment of the theory that it takes more than one generation to make a farmer or a shirt-maker or an engineer, and the principal difficulty would be in regard to the farmer. History is full of instances of country boys who achieved fame and fortune in urban occupations, but how many city boys have succeeded notably as agriculturalists? The city worker can be replaced from the country, but can the country worker be replaced from the city? The Mount Street Club may have a word to say on this theme; but, while a doubt exists, the national well-being requires that the farmer shall be kept upon the farm, and that can be done only by making rural life more attractive.

FROM "THE TIMES"

(BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT.)

TURNING THE TIDE

In a leading article to-day The Times remarks:—

The Prime Minister's fine survey of the war in the House of Commons yesterday was delivered with the authority of frank appraisal and balanced judgment, and encouraged the House to feel that secure confidence which comes only when all facts have been faced. It reflected that lifting of the spirits which has come in the last fortnight to friends of liberty in and far beyond these islands, and has been caused by the unbroken series of victorious actions fought by the Royal Air Force. The British airmen, said Mr. Churchill, are turning the tide of world war by their prowess and by their devotion. Over our own territory the fighters day after day have been striking down their adversaries in numbers out of all proportion to their own losses. Though the onslaught may occasionally seem to flag we know that the enemy is only collecting fresh and probably larger masses for its renewal, for with his retreat barred by his own mendacious proclamations of success he dare not desist from the attack. But the supremacy of our airmen's skill is now so triumphantly proved that, however violently they may be assailed by the still heavy odds against them, the enemy will spend his strength in vain.

Meanwhile their comrades of the bomber squadrons are carrying destruction into the heart of Germany, demonstrating a power of offence against the German war machine that mounts steadily as the months go by.

Referring to our blockade, The Times proceeds:—On the most distasteful of this, the Prime Minister had to speak with the firmness made necessary by the harsh logic of war. This country, quite as sincerely as any neutral, appreciates the humane motives of those who would seek to evade that logic. But it is the Germans who have withdrawn the stores of food or impaired the harvest that might be and ought to have been at the disposal of the subjugated populations.

There is no help for any of them except by the overthrow of their oppressors, but Mr. Churchill gave a welcome assurance that succour shall be prepared in advance, and, when that time comes, shall be immediately extended to all the oppressed, including the German and Austrian peoples, who, like our own Allies, may look for food, freedom and peace, directly the Nazi power is shattered. This guarantee must by all possible means be made known to the blindfolded peoples of the Nazi Empire.

Imprisonment of Irish Volunteers.

At a special meeting of the Corporation of Dublin yesterday a resolution was passed recording a protest against the prosecution and imprisonment of young men, under the Defence of the Realm Act, without the nature of the offence alleged against them being stated. The men referred to were members of the Irish Volunteers, and the resolution further demanded that "the same privileges be extended to Irishmen as have been given to Lord Northcliffe and the English Press presently opposed to the British Government."

The resolution, which was proposed by Alderman Alfred Byrne, and seconded by Alderman Laurence O'Neill, was signed by James Higgins, James Vaughan, John M. Cogan, James Devlin, James Gately, Michael T. Byrne, W. T. Partridge, M. Brohoon, Richard O'Carroll, Patrick T. Daly, Patrick T. Power, William Chase, T. Kelly, James J. LONDON LETTER.

MR. CHURCHILL'S WAR REVIEW

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
TUESDAY NIGHT.

MR. CHURCHILL'S speech in the House of Commons this afternoon aroused greater interest on the part of the public than any statement made in recent months. The House was well filled, and all the public galleries were occupied. Mr. Churchill was in a very serious vein. The speech was broken frequently by cheers from the crowded benches, and it was obvious that the House was deeply stirred by his narration of the bravery shown in so many directions during the past few weeks. Mr. Churchill was emphatic in his declaration that no food shall pass the British blockade. Britain, he said, had ferried across the Atlantic an immense amount of munitions without the loss of a gun, and he went on: "We hope and believe we shall be able to continue the air struggle indefinitely, and as long as the enemy pleases. The longer it continues the more rapid will be our approach, first towards parity and then towards that air superiority upon which, in large measure, the decision of the war depends." Among those present in the House to hear the speech were Mr. Joseph Kennedy, the United States Ambassador, and the three special observers sent to London by President Roosevelt—Rear-Admiral Robert L. Gormley, United States Navy; Brigadier-General George V. Strong, United States Army; and Major-General D. C. Emmons.

Irish Cargo War Risks

The principal feature of the new advisory schedule of cargo war risks, issued by the Institute of London Underwriters, is an increase in the rates for Irish ports. Trans-Atlantic voyages to or from Great Britain and Ireland, which formerly were quoted at £7 10s. per cent., are to be rated at £10 for ports in Great Britain, and at £20 for ports in Eire and Northern Ireland. The rate for the journey to Africa, Australia and the Far East is to remain at £10 for ports in Great Britain, but for Eire and Northern Ireland, for which the rate hitherto has been the same as for Great Britain, it is doubled, at £20. The increase in the rates for Irish ports is subject to a reduction to the same level as British ports, where vessels do not call at Atlantic islands, travel to or from Dublin and Belfast, and only proceed by way of the North of Ireland, and are in convoy.

English Egg Supply

English towns are to get more eggs. It has been found that most of the available supplies of late have got no further than the country districts in which they were produced, egg merchants being able to obtain full retail prices for them on the spot. At the British Ministry of Food it is stated that soon it will pay producers better to send larger supplies to big centres, as under a new order eggs will go to grading stations, a plan which will assist distributors and give producers and retailers a fixed profit. English "Grade A" eggs now have been increased in price from 2s. 9d. to 3s. a dozen.

Air Raid Warnings

The British Government is inclined to make changes in the air-raid warnings. Under the present system the sounding of sirens is left to the discretion of the Air Officer Commanding-in-Chief Fighter Command, who has to avoid undue interference with civil life. The Government has been considering the representations of local authorities, whose areas have suffered casualties without a warning being given. The latest protest comes from Croydon and district, where the sirens were sounded a considerable time after bombs had been dropped. The Government is of the opinion that in the light of experience the normal functioning of the home front must not be allowed to become paralysed by the approach of aircraft on any part of the country. At present, even if the civilian population have taken shelter, work continues in the factories until the sound of aircraft is heard in the vicinity or until anti-aircraft guns go into action. It is thought that the new arrangement will stress the importance of this system, being further encouraged with the possibility that more frequent warnings will be sounded for the safety of civilians, while night warnings also may be more frequent.

Coal Trade Pooling

A scheme for the pooling of available trade by all collieries is on the point of completion, and this will enable export coalfields, where business is less than it used to be, to have a larger share of business. It is provided that all pits open shall be kept in repair, ready for production if work in any other pits is interfered with. The workers could be switched over from one mine to another, and it is assumed that in this way nine days' work a fortnight could be guaranteed for every man. Large supplies of coal now are being sent to all parts of the country in readiness for possible severe weather during the winter months.

IRISHMAN'S DIARY

Learning to Shoot

Further to my note of Monday—as business-men say—I must report that members of the Local Security Force in all parts of the country are making their first acquaintance with the art of rifle-shooting, and one of the most fortunate sections in this respect seems to be the Clondalkin group, to which the City of Dublin Miniature Rifle Club has afforded every facility at the club's Drimnagh Rifle Range. Rifles, targets, and plenty of "tips" are available to all the L.S.F. men.

When I visited the range the other evening I found the club's vice-president, Mr. G. P. Fleming, giving advice to a group of the "rookies." His advice is particularly valuable, because he has been shooting for almost forty years, and has represented Ireland at miniature "internationals" on many occasions. Mr. Fleming—a Scot by birth—took part in his first international contest as far back as 1909, when he was captain of the East Antrim Miniature Rifle Club.

If every L.S.F. unit could have such facilities as Clondalkin have been granted, and such help as Mr. Fleming and his friends have been giving, I am sure it would not be long before we would have in this country as highly-trained and efficient a force of sharpshooters as could be found anywhere.

Example from Terenure

Heaven, on the other hand, has a habit of helping those who help themselves, and I must record that at least one Dublin group has shown an example to its fellows.

Victor Waddington, the art expert, who is a member of the Terenure Local Security Force, tells me that they actually have started upon the construction of a miniature range for themselves. That is good work, and I congratulate them on their energy.

A suitable patch of land, of course, is still the first essential, and my appeal to farmers remains valid.

Virginia

Muintir na Tire's rural week has certainly drawn attention to the Co. Cavan village of Virginia, of which, I am confident, half the people in the southern part of this country barely had heard before. It is a pretty little place of 440 inhabitants, situated near the shores of Lough Ramor and on the main road from Dublin to Cavan town.

It takes its name from Queen Elizabeth, the "virgin queen," and it was founded at the time of the plantation of Ulster by James I. The plantation of Virginia, however, does not seem to have been a big affair; for in 1618, seven years after the grant for the town was made, it consisted only of eight timber houses, and in 1664 it contained only six houses which were liable for hearth tax.

Its growth from a hamlet to a little town occurred around 1756-1786, when many Co. Cavan towns developed as a result of the flax industry.

By 1821 the population was 467; in 1831 it was 930, and in 1841 it was 965. I suspect that the 1821 census was not a thorough one!

Anyway, Virginia to-day has less than half the population it possessed one hundred years ago. Our reporter covering the rural week tells me, however, that the number of public-houses in the town cannot have shrunk much, since there is one for every thirty to thirty-five inhabitants.

Famous Inn

Virginia was famous as a place with a good coaching inn in the days when people, instead of going to the seaside, went to spas; for it was on the road to Swanlinbar Spa. It also, of course, was a notable spot on the road north.

Some of the facts in this and the foregoing paragraph were obtained from Dr. P. O'Connell, M.Sc., Ph.D., a Virginian, who has achieved note as an historian of Cavan. He spoke to Muintir na Tire on the subject of the town on Thursday last, and he also acted as guide to a party which made a tour of the Slane and Tara areas.

As an indication of the type of life lived in Virginia in 1821 he states that the population included 70 spinners, 43 seamstresses, 4 mail coach guards, one baron constable, 2 chaise drivers, 3 nailors, 2 mail coach drivers, a blue dyer, and 22 foot soldiers. There were only 13 shopkeepers, whereas every third house in the main street is a shop nowadays.

The lord of the manor in 1641 was the Earl of Fingal, but at a later stage the "big house" was owned by the Marquises of Headfort; now it is an hotel. The founder of the Headfort family was Thomas Taylor, M.P. for Kells in the early part of the 18th century.

The family were strong supporters, in a financial sense, of the beautiful little Protestant church, which is situated at the apex of two important roads, with a long elm-lined drive.

Army Mascots

Comparatively few Army mascots are seen in these days, but a colleague tells me that, when he visited the Southern Command recently, he was interested to notice that at least one unit owned a dog as its mascot.

The dog—a cocker spaniel—belongs to a Field Artillery section, and during a rehearsal of the march past for Mr. de Valera and members of the Defence Council on Saturday the dog was in its place on one of the lorries. It was seated right in the centre of the lorry, and its bearing was almost soldier-like; it required no orders to keep still, and appeared to appreciate the importance of a dignified deportment.

Incidentally, adds my colleague, An Taoiseach and his Minister for Defence (Mr. Oscar Traynor) both took members of their family down to Cork for the inspection—Terence de Valera and Colum Traynor. I wonder if they are thinking of following in their father's footsteps?

TWO MEN SENTENCED TO BE SHOT

NO FOOD TO PASS THE BLOCKADE

Premier's Statement in Commons

WHY BRITAIN CAN FIGHT FOR YEARS

Heavier Bombing of Germany Foretold

IN a statement on the war situation, in the House of Commons yesterday, Mr. Churchill gave some of the "solid grounds" for Britain's confidence in being able to continue the war, if necessary, for years.

Among these were:—

British aircraft production now greatly exceeds that of Germany.

The Navy is stronger than at the beginning of the war, and there is more merchant tonnage under the British flag.

During July immense quantities of munitions had reached them from across the Atlantic.

Two million determined men, he said, with rifles and bayonets in their hands, defended the country that night.

He foreshadowed new operations in the Middle East, and also announced that Britain had offered to lease defence bases to the United States.

WAR FRONTS EVERYWHERE

Contrasting this war with the last, Mr. Churchill said that British casualties in the first twelve months of the Great War amounted to 365,000. In this war, killed, wounded, prisoners and missing, including civilians, were about 92,000. in this war the fronts were everywhere.

"The trenches are dug in the towns and cities, every village is fortified, every road is barred, the front line runs through the factories, and the workmen are soldiers with different weapons but the same courage."

There was every reason to believe that this new kind of war was suited to the genius and resources of the British nation. If it was a case of the whole nation fighting and suffering together, that ought to suit them, because they were the most united of all the nations. If all their qualities were turned, as they were being turned, to the arts of war, they might be able to show the enemy quite a lot of things they had not yet thought of.

THE JOURNEY'S END

"Hitler is now sprawled over Europe," said the Premier, "our offensive springs are being slowly compressed, and we must resolutely prepare ourselves for the campaign of 1941 and 1942."

It did not follow that their energies would be confined to defence. Many opportunities might lie open to amphibious power, and they must be ready to take advantage of them.

"The road to victory may not be so long as we expect; but we have no right to count upon this. Be it long or short, rough or smooth, we mean to reach our journey's end."

BLOCKADE TO REMAIN

Stating that it was their intention to enforce a strict blockade of all territories within the enemy's control, Mr. Churchill referred to many proposals, "founded on the highest motives," that food should be allowed to pass the blockade for the relief of the subjugated populations.

"I regret that we must refuse those requests," he declared, amid cheers.

He pointed out that some of the invaded countries had had large stocks of food, while others usually produced sufficient for their people.

"The only agency which can create famine in any part of Europe now and during the coming winter will be German exactions or German failure to distribute the supplies which they command."

The Premier added: "Let Hitler bear his responsibilities to the full—(Cheers)—and let the peoples of Europe who groan beneath his yoke aid in every way the coming of the day when it will be broken."

RECENT MONTHS OF TRIAL

BRITAIN NOW STRONGER THAN EVER

Reviewing the "cataract of disaster" which had fallen upon Britain, Mr. Churchill declared that, if at the beginning of May they had been confronted with the present position, few would have believed they could have survived.

"None would have believed that we would to-day not only feel stronger, but could actually be stronger than we have ever been before. We will face whatever is coming to us. We are sure of ourselves and of our cause, and here is the supreme factor which has emerged in these months of trial:

"Not only have we fortified our hearts, but our island. The whole island bristles against invaders from the sea or from the air."

MUNITIONS FROM AMERICA

Mr. Churchill recounted the influx of cannons, rifles, machine-guns and ammunition from America, the outpourings of British factories, the increase in their food supplies, in the strength of their Navy and merchant marine. He did not say all this to give countenance to complacency.

"The dangers we face are still enormous, but so are our advantages and resources.

"I recount them because the people have a right to know that there are solid grounds for the confidence we feel, and that we have good reason to believe ourselves capable, as I said in a very dark hour two months ago, of continuing the war if necessary alone, if necessary for years."

INVINCIBLE EMPIRE

"I say it because the fact that the British Empire stands invincible, and that Naxidom can still be resisted, will kindle again the spark of hope in the breasts of hundreds of millions of lowntrodden or despairing men and women throughout Europe."

From these sparks would presently come a cleansing and devouring flame. They must expect that greater efforts in the great air battle would be made by the enemy. Hostile airfields were still being developed in France and the Low Countries. The astounding increase in the output and repair of British aircraft and engines which Lord Beaverbrook had achieved by a genius for organisation and drive which looks like magic had given them overflowing reserves of every type of aircraft, and an ever-mounting stream of production both in quantity and quality. (Cheers.)

AIR FORCE'S STRENGTH

"The enemy is, of course, far more numerous than we are, but our new production already, as I am advised, largely exceeds his, and the American production is only just beginning to flow in. It is a fact that, after all this fighting, our bomber and fighter strengths are larger than they have ever been."

They believed they would be able to continue the struggle as long as the enemy pleased, and the longer it continued the more rapid would be their approach to that superiority in the air, upon which, in a large measure, the decision of the war depends.

Paying tribute to the British airmen who were turning the tide of the world war by their prowess and devotion, he said that never in the field of human conflict was so much owed by so many to so few. (Prolonged cheers.)

THE BOMBING OF GERMANY

HINT ABOUT THE MIDDLE EAST

Their bombing of German military industries, communications and air bases would continue on an ever-increasing scale until the end of the war, and might in another year attain dimensions hitherto undreamed of. This afforded one of the surest, if not the shortest, of all roads to victory.

"Far larger operations, no doubt, impend in the Middle East theatre, and I shall certainly not attempt to discuss or prophesy about their probable course."

OFFER TO UNITED STATES

Mr. Churchill then announced that it had been decided spontaneously, and without being asked or offered any inducement, to inform the Government of the United States that they would be glad to place facilities for the naval and air defences of the Western Hemisphere at their disposal by leasing suitable sites on a 99 years leasehold basis in Britain's trans-Atlantic possessions for their greater security against the unmeasured dangers of the future. Undoubtedly this process meant that the British Empire and the United States would have to be somewhat mixed up together in some of their affairs.

"I do not view the process with any misgiving," said Mr. Churchill. "I do not want to stop it. No one can stop it. Like the Mississippi, it just keeps rolling along. Let it roll. Let it roll on, full flood, inexorable, irresistible, benignant, to broader lands and better days."

THE DEBATE

SINKINGS OFF IRISH COAST

Mr. Lees Smith (Lab., Keighley) said the Prime Minister had spoken for a united nation, and in the name of every free man in every free country. If Hitler did not beat them by invasion in the next month, and the time of special danger was up to about September 21, he would try to do so by blockade. They were already losing some 67,000 tons of merchant shipping a week. Most of the sinkings were presumably off the west coast of Ireland.

"If we could use the ports of Southern Ireland, which we handed over a few days before the war, we could reduce these sinkings to a small figure," he said.

"The world should realise what we pay for our principles. Scores of ships are being sunk, and thousands of seamen drowned, because we cannot even within our own Commonwealth use ports for our Navy which, without that Navy, would share the fate of Holland and Denmark

Mr. Hore Belisha (L., Devonport) commented that the Prime Minister had never made a greater speech, and they might be proud to have a leader of that stamp at this time. They must have a striking force to hit the enemy at the convenient time on European territory. In particular, the Army should have its own Air Arm.

They could not win the war with 800,000 unemployed.

Earl Winterton (C., Horsham and Worthing) considered it would be dangerous to get into the frame of mind that he thought Mr. Churchill was approaching, of thinking that this was in no sense going to be a land war. They must be prepared for immense land operations, and he urged the development of the great resources of Africa and India.

Captain Quintin Hogg (Conservative, Ipswich), expressing doubt as to whether the manner in which some members of the Executive had done their work was not open to criticism, asked were there not signs of the old indecision in foreign policy. Could it be said that the moral of the Army was as high as that of the Navy and Air Force?

FOUR DAYS AFTER THE DEATH OF DETECTIVE

FINDING OF MILITARY COURT

Record to be Sent to the Government

TWO men yesterday were sentenced to be shot for the murder of a detective in Dublin four days earlier.

"The order and sentence of this Court is that you, Thomas Green, alias Francis Hart, and you, Patrick McGrath, suffer death by shooting" for the murder of Richard Hyland at Rathgar road. In these words the new Military Court, established under the Emergency Powers (No. 41) Order, pronounced its first judgment and contributed a new chapter to legal history in this country.

On Friday morning last, 16th August, two members of the detective force, Detective Sergeant Patrick McKeown and Detective Officer Richard Hyland, were done to death by gunfire in the course of their duties at Rathgar road. That same evening the Government issued an Order—No. 41, under the Emergency Powers Order, 1940—providing for the trial in summary manner by commissioned officers of the Defence Forces of persons alleged to have committed certain offences specified in the Order. The Order further provided, in the case of conviction, for the imposition and the carrying out of the death sentence.

On Saturday the two accused men appeared before the Special Military Court and the dates of the trials were fixed.

On Monday last, three days after the shooting, the remains of the murdered officers were laid to rest, their funeral procession being witnessed by thousands of the populace who lined the streets of the capital from the church to Glasnevin Cemetery.

On Tuesday evening, within four days of the shooting, two men—Thomas Green, alias Francis Hart and Patrick McGrath, had been tried, found guilty and sentenced to death for the murder.

THE MILITARY COURT

The Military Court, composed of three military officers, drawn from the five members of the present Special Criminal Court, differed in the important respect that from its findings there would be no appeal. "The Court," as the Minister, Mr. G. Boland, explained on the second reading of the bill in the Senate, "will be used only in the most extreme cases, the only sentence it can impose will be the sentence of death, and also the sentence will be carried out speedily if the Government does not decide to commute or remit the sentence. . . In any emergency like the present people who go around with guns or fire at officers of the State in the execution of their duty, or try to take the law into their own hands, or to upset the Government, will have to be dealt with in a summary and drastic fashion, and the Government is determined that should certain people persist in acting, as they have been acting, they will have to be dealt with in a drastic way."

REFUSED TO PLEAD

With scrupulous care the State had made clear to the accused men that every facility would be granted them for the preparation of their defence, but both had declined to take advantage of such offer. Again, in court, both men had refused to enter pleas, but the Court, following strict legal procedure, had entered pleas of "Not guilty," and had gone on to take and sift the evidence.

Comrades of the dead detectives told of the manner in which their party approached the little shop at 98a Rathgar road shortly after 8 o'clock on Friday morning last. Dividing their forces, three of the detectives, including Detective Sergeant McKeown and Detective Officer Hyland, entered a short recess leading to the doorway of the shop. They rang the bell, and, after an interval, a girl approached the door from inside the shop, looked through the plate glass portion of the door and retired again, but without opening the door.

WITHERING FIRE

Later a boy came to the door to take in milk and the detectives entered the shop where they were met with a withering outburst of gunfire, which wounded fatally two of the officers and seriously wounded the third, Detective Officer Brady.

One of the most impressive features of yesterday's trial was the taking of evidence from this wounded survivor in the Meath Hospital, whither the Court adjourned for that purpose. Such a procedure itself emphasised the gravity of the case.

Early in the hearing the accused men had followed the tale with a certain alertness, although not taking any part save for one or two interjections from Patrick McGrath.

THE COURT'S VERDICT

When the State case closed the President asked each of the prisoners in turn if he cared to call witness, give evidence or make any statement, but both declined to do so.

After a short quarter of an hour's retirement the Court announced their verdict. And the phraseology of the sentence itself proclaimed how different was this Court from the ordinary Court of Criminal procedure. Instead of the ritual of the black cap and the sentence of hanging, the President announced judgment as follows:—

"The Court find you —— guilty of the murder of Richard Hyland on the 16th day of August, 1940, and the Order and sentence of this Court is that you, ——, suffer death by shooting.

"The record of the proceedings of this trial, and the findings and sentence of this Military Court will be transmitted to the Government, and if the Government decide to decline to remit or commute this sentence such decision shall be conveyed to the Adjutant-General, who will as soon as may be, give all necessary directions for the execution of such sentence. Such directions of the Adjutant-General must be complied with not later than forty-eight hours after such directions are given."

SOMALILAND TROOPS AT ADEN

PRESS ASSOCIATION WAR SPECIAL.

CAIRO, Tuesday.

The communiqué issued here to-night states:—

"Western Desert—No change.

TROTSKY WOUNDED

MEXICO CITY, Tuesday.

GERMAN 'PLANE CRASH IN KERRY CREW INTERNED

The Government Information Bureau last evening issued the following statement on behalf of the Department of Defence:—

"A German 'plane crashed early this afternoon at Faha Mountain, near Cloghane, Co. Kerry.

"The 'plane is a total wreck.

"The crew of six—two of whom were seriously injured and removed to hospital—have been interned."

The 'plane crashed during a dense fog, says our Dingle correspondent. People who heard an explosion went to the place, and found the pilot with a broken leg and another officer with his spine injured.

The Local Security Force put the injured men into a collapsible rubber boat, taken from the wreckage of the 'plane, and brought them, together with the four uninjured members of the crew, to Cloghane Civic Guard Barracks, where revolvers and an axe were surrendered.

12 GERMAN STATIONS OFF THE AIR

At 10.15 last night Bremen, Hamburg, Hilversum, Radio-Paris, Luxembourg, Stuttgart, Vienna, Cologne, Leipzig, Berlin, Breslau and Deutschlandsender radio stations were all off the air.—(Press Association War Special.)

MANY RAIDS ON GERMANY

British Report Much Damage

THE British Air Ministry last night issued the following communiqué:—

"Yesterday our bombers carried out daylight reconnaissances over Holland and the North Sea. An anti-aircraft position near Amsterdam and the aerodrome at Flushing were bombed.

"One of our aircraft did not return.

"During the night 30 enemy aerodromes in Germany and in enemy-occupied territory were attacked. Other aircraft bombed the naval base at Kiel and the oil refinery at Hanover, the power station at Zschornewitz, north of Leipzig, and a number of key-points on the enemy's lines of communications in the Ruhr and north-west Germany. Oil tanks at Ambes, near Bordeaux, were also successfully attacked.

"Two aircraft were lost in the operations.

BLENHEIMS AT ST. OMER

"Blenheim aircraft of the Coastal Command caused many fires last (Monday) night when they raided the aerodrome at St. Omer, in Northern France," states the Air Ministry News Service.

"The leader of the formation straddled the aerodrome with his bombs. There was a big explosion on the ground, followed by several smaller ones.

"Fierce fires broke out, and further salvoes of incendiary bombs increased the fires until most of the airfield was cloaked in flames.

"The Blenheims took the enemy completely by surprise. They found a flare path lighted in readiness for returning Nazi aircraft.

"One Blenheim pilot, mistaken for a German, was signalled to come in and land. He replied with a load of bombs.

"Flare paths and tarmac in front of a line of hangars—revealed by the flashes of the bombs—were hit repeatedly.

"A Blenheim who could not find his primary target was approaching Cap Grisnez on the return journey when a concentration of German searchlights opened up on him. He dived and dropped all his bombs on them. The lights went out and fires started on the headland."

DIRECT HITS ON KIEL

"A strong force of Bomber Command aircraft attacked the German naval dockyard at Kiel during the night (Monday). Drifting clouds over the district hampered observations of the results, but numerous direct hits were seen to have been scored within the dockyard and heavy damage must have been caused. One salvo of heavy bombs was observed to burst on the main basin of the dockyard, while six hits were made on an underground oil store. Heavy explosions were also noticed in the shipyards lying to the south of the main basin.

"Intense well-directed anti-aircraft fire was encountered throughout the attack and the British aircraft had also to contend with many searchlights and a balloon barrage.

"An extensive electric power station at Zschornewitz, twenty-five miles north of Leipzig, was the objective of another raiding force, which, during an attack lasting for seventy-five minutes, dropped nearly ten tons of high explosive and numerous small incendiary bombs on their target. One great explosion broke out soon after the bombing had started and was later followed by a series of fires which sprang up in many parts of the power station.

EXPLOSION AT OIL STORES

"Oil storage centres in Germany—Salzbergen, Ostermoor and Hanover—were also raided during the night.

"At Hanover, a bomber flying at 3,000ft., was rocked by the force of one great explosion, accompanied by a sheet of flame 200ft. high. Here, too, a bomb that burst on the eastern edge of the target was followed several minutes later by a red glow, which could be seen when the aircraft was forty miles away.

"The Dortmund-Emms Canal, one of Germany's main arteries for river-borne traffic, was again bombed, and, in a low-level attack on the Weser Elbe Canal, a line of bombs was seen to straddle an important bridge and to strike an adjoining main railway line.

"Rail communications over a wide area were dislocated, and damage was caused by successful attacks on railway junctions at Bremen, Wunstorf and Geseke. Two big explosions in the railway yard at Geseke resulted in outbreaks of fire. The aircraft responsible for this attack was damaged by

TWO HOURS' BATTLE OVER CHANNEL

Raiders Met with Strong Resistance

SEVEN SHOT DOWN DURING THE DAY

WHILE few German 'planes flew over Britain yesterday morning, waves of raiders appeared in the afternoon and tried to cross the coast at different points.

Some of them were met over the Channel by British 'planes, and after a good deal of fighting were compelled to turn back.

Those who succeeded in getting inland attacked a balloon barrage, and during a fight that followed one of them was shot down.

An attack by dive bombers was made also on an aerodrome on the south-east coast. They were engaged and driven off, after causing some damage.

At ten o'clock last night it was officially stated in London that seven of the raiders had been destroyed.

It was also announced that in Sunday's air battles over Britain the number of German 'planes shot down was 152.

ROSSLARE MAIL BOAT AGAIN ATTACKED

THREE GERMAN 'PLANES DROPPED BOMBS

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT

ROSSLARE HARBOUR, Tuesday.

A THRILLING battle took place about fifteen miles off the South Wexford coast to-day, when the Great Western Railway mail steamer St. Patrick, bound from Fishguard to Rosslare Harbour, was attacked by three German bombers.

Passengers and crew gave me a graphic description of the battle. "The three 'planes suddenly swooped down out of a cloudy sky," a sailor told me.

"The moment they were observed the ship's gunners opened fire. The 'planes circled over the ship and commenced to bomb us. Some of the bombs struck the water near the steamer, and the explosions made the ship shudder."

There were over fifty passengers on board, including many women and children. One woman said:—"We saw three big dark-coloured 'planes diving towards us, and heard the bursts of fire from the mail boat guns. Then we were all ordered below and made put on our life-jackets. The ship continued travelling a zig-zag course at full speed, with both guns firing continuously. After about twenty minutes the machines were driven off, but we were not allowed on deck until the ship reached Irish territorial waters."

A ship's officer told me that all the passengers behaved splendidly. One woman travelling with four small children said that the children were so interested in the life-jackets that they paid no notice to the roar of the ship's guns, although she herself was terrified.

On arrival at Rosslare the passengers' faces were white and wan as they streamed down the gangway, but they soon cheered up after their terrifying ordeal.

This is the second attack on the St. Patrick within the past few days. The ship is about 3,000 tons gross, and is registered in London. She carries a crew of fifty.

CLARE HOME AGAIN

The civil flying boat Clare, of the British Overseas Airways Corporation, arrived at Foynes, on the Shannon, at 11.35 (British summer time) yesterday morning, having crossed the North Atlantic on the west to east route in 13 hrs. 52 mins.

The Clare left Botwood, Newfoundland, at 9.43 p.m. (British summer time) on Monday.

Six passengers, who included four Americans, were carried, and after a stay of about 2½ hours at Foynes the Clare took off again for England, where she arrived in the afternoon. All the passengers travelled to England.

Mr. Hugo Flinn, Parliamentary Secretary for Posts and Telegraphs, witnessed the arrival of the Clare at Foynes. He was introduced to Captain J. P. Kirton, the commander, and spoke to him for a few moments about the trip. Later he went aboard the Clare and inspected her.

shrapnel from the ground defences, which penetrated its fuselage and fractured the starboard elevator. Two machine-gun bullets, lodged in the raider's gun turret, were evidence of the low-height from which the attack was pressed home.

"The railway yard at Hamm, the largest assembly point for goods traffic in Germany, received its fifty-second visit. Lines of high-explosive bombs were seen to fall down the centre of the yard, and twenty separate fires were kindled by incendiary bombs in all parts of the target area, and were seen to be spreading rapidly.

"In the course of an hour's intensive bombardment, the great oil refineries and storage plants at Bec d'Armes, near Bordeaux, were further damaged. At the height of the attack, the point of land on which the refineries stand, was described by an observer as 'a sheet of flame and smoke.' Raiding aircraft felt the heat from the fires at a height of two thousand feet.

"One of the early attacks was carried out by dive-bombing to within a hundred feet of the ground. This is the second occasion on which these refineries have been attacked by Bomber Command aircraft.

AERODROMES ATTACKED

"The night's operations also included raids on some twenty-five enemy aerodromes in Germany Holland, Belgium and France.

"Buildings were struck by high-explosive bombs on the aerodromes at Leeuwarden, in Northern Holland; Lanveoc, near Brest, and at Soesterburg. Jagel, Flushing, Brest, Buipavas, Ostend, Briay and Orleans. Fires were seen to break out, following the bombing of aerodromes, at Liseaux, Rennes, Montebourg and Diepholz, and in an attack on the Evere Airport at Brussels a searchlight was put out of action by machine-gun fire from a low-flying raider.

"A fire started at St. Inglevert Aerodrome could be seen from the other side of the English Channel.

"At Villacoublay, a military aerodrome on the outskirts of Paris, bombs were seen to burst on the hangars and across the landing ground."

THE BALKAN TALKS

Rumania Still Unyielding

BUCHAREST, Tuesday.

THE great divergence between the proposals of Rumania and Hungary on the latter's claim to Transylvania has led to the belief here that the Turnu Severin negotiations are more likely to be broken off than resumed.

Following the adjournment of the talks at midnight last night it was announced that the heads of the two delegations were reporting personally to their Governments. The other members of the delegations are still at Turnu Severin. Hungary's claim to practically two-thirds of Transylvanian territory is described to-day by the official Rumanian Government newspaper, Rumania, as "enormous, inconceivable and ridiculous." A just and final understanding, the newspaper asserts, can be reached only on the basis of an exchange of populations and the cession of frontier territory sufficient to settle the 1,350,000 Hungarians at present in Rumania. The sole possibility of Rumania agreeing to cede territory to Hungary, it is considered here, is on a basis of minority transfers.

Rumania's counter-proposals offer part of four frontier districts and a reciprocal exchange of populations. This means in effect that Rumania offers about one-fifth of Hungary's territorial demands and the transfer of 500,000 people instead of 3,700,000, who would be exchanged under the Hungarian demand.

Meanwhile the conclusion of an agreement ceding Southern Dobruja to Bulgaria is expected as a result of the discussions between the Rumanian and Bulgarian delegations which are proceeding at Craiova. The atmosphere at these talks, it is stated, is favourable and friendly. General agreement on the cession has already been reached, it is reported, and the discussion at present centres round technical details. The leaders of the two delegations have announced their firm intention of strengthening the existing friendship between the two countries.

LEASES TO UNITED STATES

"MOST MOMENTOUS HAPPENING"

The British Foreign Secretary (Lord Halifax), replying to the debate on the war in the House of Lords last night, said that details regarding the leasing to America of potential naval and air bases in Atlantic West Indian ports and Newfoundland were to be settled in the course of discussion between the two Governments. They were agreed in principle, and he was satisfied that no great difficulty would arise in regard to details.

Viscount Samuel described this development as "the most momentous happening recently in the political world," emphasising the friendship, good-will and co-operation between the British Commonwealth and the United States of America.

The debate was initiated by a statement made by Viscount Caldecote in answer to Lord Addison.

Lord Addison said that he was not satisfied that their Intelligence Service was "married up" to their armed forces as efficiently as it ought to be. He expressed doubt as to whether Lord Gort was well informed about the state of affairs in France as soon as he might have been.

Lord Marchwood, urging that they should get their case over to America, said that if it was impossible for the censorship to deal with news more quickly, then greater latitude and licence should be given the Press to disseminate news throughout the world.

FOR two hours a continuous air battle raged over the Channel yesterday as waves of German raiders tried to cross the coast. A.A. guns put up a curtain of shells and fighter 'planes flashed up. Several formations of bombers fled in disorder, while a formation of nearly 20 which tried to cross at one point retreated, swerved and turned inland further down the coast.

Several minutes later (telephones Press Association special reporter) loud explosions, thought to be from bombs, came from the direction the 'planes had taken.

TWO HOURS' BATTLE

Six Messerschmitt 109's out of about 20 'planes which attempted to cross the coast elsewhere, succeeded in getting over several miles from their original objective, but were chased seawards again. Passing ove a coast town two of them dived and made an unsuccessful attack on the balloon barrage.

During the two hours' battle one of the raiders was shot down and crashed in flames. The crew of three baled out and two landed. The other was rescued from the sea by a boat.

Of the three Germans who came down, two were slightly injured and the other seriously. They were taken in charge by the military, and one of them, given a cup of tea, expressed his complete astonishment at the luxury of milk. One airman was only about 17.

FIGHT FOR AERODROME

Dive bombers attacked a south-east coast aerodrome during the afternoon, but met a fierce A.A. barrage as they dived to machine-gun the aerodrome. Spitfires engaged them, and shrapnel and spent bullets fell in nearby towns. The raiders were driven off after causing—it is believed—only slight damage.

HIDE AND SEEK IN CLOUDS

BOMBERS AND FIGHTERS SEPARATED

Twice A.A. fire and British fighters broke up a formation of 20 Messerschmitt 109s over a south-east coastal area. The escorting German fighters were separated from the bombers, and for half an hour they were seen flying in and out of the clouds trying to resume their formation before searching for their lost bombers. They flew south in two waves, but A.A. fire drove them back. They scurried northwards, but the same hot reception met them, and again their formation was broken.

Every time one appeared out of a cloud an accurate burst of A.A. fire appeared in front. At last, in three groups, they flew out to sea to reform themselves away from the harassing gunfire.

Circling, they formed up again, and after flying around twice, but well away from the coast, flew towards the land once more in search of their bombers.

As they got within range a battery of A.A. guns put up such a blast of metal in front of them that they turned abruptly and fled eastwards, leaving their bombers to sort themselves out from the attacking British fighters and make their way home as best they could.

INQUEST IN A SHELTER

An inquest was held in an air raid shelter at a south-east coast town last night.

The inquest had just begun when the raid started, and the coroner and jurors, police, reporters and witnesses were escorted to a nearby shelter, where the inquiry was continued, while women shoppers and other members of the general public sat on adjoining benches.

HOME GUARDS UNDER FIRE

A German 'plane swooped down on a beach of a south-west town last night and machine-gunned men bathing. Climbing higher, the 'plane let out a burst at Home Guards on duty at the top of a cliff.

The German then disappeared into the clouds, with a Spitfire on its tail, but apparently managed to escape among the clouds, and went on to another south-west town.

MINISTRY STATEMENT

SEVEN SHOT DOWN

The British Air Ministry and Ministry of Home Security communiqué last night said:—

"During this (Tuesday) morning enemy activities over this country were comparatively slight. Bombs were dropped on two towns, one in Essex and the other in South Wales.

"In both places houses were hit and some persons were injured, a small number of these casualties being fatal.

"Bombs were also dropped on a South Wales port, the damage done being small.

"This afternoon the enemy approached the south-east coast in stronger force. An East Anglian town was attacked, but no casualties have so far been reported, and damage was confined to broken windows.

"The main objective of the afternoon attack appears to have been an aerodrome on the south coast, but the enemy showed no desire to press home the attack, and very few of his aircraft succeeded in penetrating our defences. No damage was done.

"Reports received up to five o'clock show that three enemy aircraft were shot down by our fighters, bringing the total for the day to four."

11 P.M. REPORT

An Air Ministry bulletin, issued at 11 p.m., states that reports received up to nine p.m. show that seven German aircraft were destroyed by R.A.F. fighters yesterday.

The number of German bombers and fighters shot down by A.A. guns during Sunday's air battles now proves to be 23.

The German losses on Sunday were, therefore, 152.

BERLIN REPORT

The Berlin Radio summed up the raids in the following words:—

"The armed reconnaissance carried out this afternoon brought good results, in spite of bad weather conditions. The German flyers dominated the air over South and South-East England. British fighters were met, but in small units, so that only sporadic combats occurred."—(Associated Press.)

SWOOP ON A TOWN

SIX HOUSES DESTROYED

Some people were killed and many injured when German bombers made low dive attacks on a south-west town, hitting a row of houses.

Two German machines believed to have been engaged in the attack were brought down by R.A.F. fighters within a few miles of the scene.

Two bombs fell on a terrace of fourteen houses, demolishing six of them and rendering between thirty and forty people homeless.

Another house several hundred yards away was wrecked, and a bomb fell in the corner of a public park.

The row of cottages had been cut completely into three sections by two bombs, which had fallen in the centre of the roofs, completely demolished six. At a large house several hundred yards away a bomb had fallen in the front garden and blown the whole of the front of the house completely away.

A woman who was pinned beneath the wreckage had part of her hand blown away and was otherwise seriously injured. She was able to tell her rescuers the best way in which she could be moved, whilst all the time her husband lay in front of her also seriously wounded and helpless.

At least four bombs were dropped by a single enemy raider over a south-east coast town late last night and some damage was done. There are a few casualties.

NEW GERMAN FLYING-BOAT

A.-A. guns destroyed a Dornier 24, a tri-motored flying boat, not previously seen round the British coast, states the Air Ministry News Service last night.

LOCAL SECURITY FORCE

NEW UNIFORM DISPLAYED AT HOWTH

By kind permission of Major-General W. R. E. Murphy, Deputy Commissioner of the Garda Siochana, Major J. Bayley Butler, Adjutant of the Howth group of the Local Security Force, showed, yesterday, to a number of units the new uniform of the force.

The new uniform is dark brown, and consists of a blouse, waisted in to a belt. The blouse has a turn-down collar, with patch-pockets and shoulder straps. The trousers can be buttoned in over the ankles by an ankle strap for active service. There is a forage cap, bearing the L.S.F. badge. This badge can be removed and worn in the lapel of civilian clothes. The uniform is exceedingly smart, and very well designed and tailored.

The units will be co-operating in a joint scheme of tactical exercises, to be carried out on September 8th at Howth.

A number of the uniforms will be issued very shortly. It is hoped that the greater part of the men engaged in the tactical exercises at Howth on September 8th will be provided with them. In the course of these exercises Pathe Gazette will be taking a film illustrating the activities of the L.S.F. It is in consequence of this that the Howth group is being given the privilege of showing the uniforms to those participating.

THE ATTACK ON G.W.R. STEAMER

INQUEST ON MOSES BRENNAN

CAPTAIN DESCRIBES THE SHOOTING

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

WEXFORD, Tuesday.

An inquest on Moses Brennan, Wexford, whose death occurred in Wexford County Hospital from the effect of bullet wounds received when the St. Patrick, a Great Western Company mail steamer, was machine-gunned by a German 'plane on her way from Fishguard to Rosslare, was held by Mr. Michael Kavanagh, solicitor, Acting Coroner, and a jury.

John Brennan, Ram street, Wexford, son of Moses Brennan, stated that his father had been home on a visit on last Thursday evening, and rejoined the St. Patrick, on which he was employed as seaman, on Thursday night at Rosslare. He identified the remains, and said that his father was 46 years of age.

Dr. John A. Driscoll, house surgeon, stated that Moses Brennan had a compound fracture of the right leg, and the tibia and nerves were severely lacerated. It was necessary to amputate the leg. He died four hours after being admitted to the hospital.

CAPTAIN'S EVIDENCE

Captain Faraday, master of the St. Patrick, said that the ship left Fishguard on Saturday afternoon. Moses Brennan was keeping a look-out in a shelter provided for the purpose on top of the wheelhouse, over the bridge. Ten miles E.S.E. of the Tuskar Captain Faraday said he was on the bridge looking out for the Tuskar Lighthouse, when he suddenly heard the rattle of machine-gun fire. He looked behind him and saw a 'plane about 200 feet away astern, flying towards the ship at about the height of the masts. He could not say that he saw bullets hit the deck. He took shelter behind the wheelhouse from the bullets, and he took it that the ship was being "sprayed" with bullets, as the noise continued for several seconds. He did not see the 'plane drop anything, but he was told that it had dropped a bomb.

As the 'plane passed her rear gun opened fire on the ship, and he heard bullets strike the deck, and the 'plane then flew away. He heard Brennan shout, "Oh, my leg." Seaman Kent ran round the wheelhouse and found Brennan lying on the deck at the foot of the ladder. Kent carried him into the wheelhouse. Blood was flowing from Brennan's right leg and he was in great pain. A nurse who was a passenger and a man on board applied first aid to Brennan and to a passenger named Jacob, who was also hit by bullets. The ship then made full speed to Rosslare, where the wounded men were put on a special train and taken to Wexford Hospital.

TRIBUTE TO NURSE

Captain Faraday paid a tribute to Nurse Maloney, of Clogheen, Co. Tipperary, who gave first aid to the wounded men on board the ship.

Baden Mendus, first officer of the St. Patrick, said that a tourniquet was tied around Brennan's leg when he was taken into the wheelhouse. It was possible that Brennan fell down the ladder to the deck after being shot.

A verdict that death was due to fractures and shock caused by bullet wounds was returned, and the Acting Coroner said that the captain and first officer were to be congratulated on their narrow escape. That very afternoon they had had to go through the same experience, and were in the happy position of being able to appear at the inquest after another escape.

NURSE'S BRAVERY

TREATMENT OF WOUNDED MEN

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

ROSSLARE HARBOUR, Tuesday.

It is now revealed that the young nurse who behaved so gallantly during the attack by a German 'plane on the G.W.R. mail boat, St. Patrick, eighteen miles off the south Wexford coast, was Miss Maloney, Clogheen, near Cahir, Co. Tipperary. Miss Maloney bravely stood by the wounded men staunching the flow of blood for two hours. She worked with the ship's officers and rendered every possible assistance. Then, although by doing so she lost the only train available to take her home, she accompanied the men in the special train which took them from Rosslare to hospital.

Captain J. Faraday, commander of the St. Patrick, and many passengers were loud in their praise of Miss Maloney.

FUNERAL OF MOSES BRENNAN

The funeral of Moses Brennan, seaman, Ram street, Wexford, who died from bullet wounds, took place to St. Ibar's Cemetery, Crosstown. Those present included Mr. W. G. Wakely, G.W.R. agent, Rosslare, who represented Captain H. Reid, marine superintendent of the company. Mr. J. Britt, Harbour Master, Rosslare, was also present.

The wounded passenger, Mr. J. Jacob, Upper road, Ballinacurra, Co. Cork, is stated to be progressing "as favourably as can be expected."

"ARREST" OF SHIP

APPLICATION BEFORE MASTER OF HIGH COURT

The "arrest" of a foreign ship at Dublin recently was disclosed, before the Master of the High Court yesterday, when an application came before him as to the procedure to be adopted in respect of a claim against the owners.

Mr. Hurley, of Messrs. Hayes and Sons, solicitors, who made the application, said that the ship was the s.s. Everoja, of Riga, and the plaintiffs, Messrs. Thor Eckert and Co., of New York, had instituted an Admiralty action claiming damages for breach of contract contained in the time charter of the ship.

The plaintiffs had been shipping on a time charter, and on the orders of the plaintiff, said Mr. Hurley, the ship, after discharging its cargo at Dublin, should have proceeded to Norfolk, Virginia, but the master of the vessel stated that he had received orders from his owners to proceed to Murmansk, in Russia. The plaintiffs were taking those proceedings to secure damages for breach of contract, and the ship was arrested in Dublin on August 7, and still lying in the port. No appearance had been entered for the owners, and in the circumstances he would ask for a direction as to procedure.

The Master (Mr. Gerald Horan, K.C.) said that no appearance had yet been entered on behalf of the owners of the ship, and the captain might have difficulty in obtaining instructions as to whether the claim for damages for breach of the charter party should be disputed or not. A very generous time must be allowed before proceedings in default of defence might be taken, so as to give every opportunity for the owners or other parties interested to be represented.

Mr. Hurley said that he was awaiting documents from America, and as soon as he got them he would file a claim.

The Master—We shall let the matter lie for a time to see whether the owners of the ship will enter an appearance.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

PARISH COUNCILS

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—Perhaps the following observations about parish councils may be of interest. At the inaugural meeting of the Terryglass Council, of which I am a member, the opinion that women should be adequately represented on it was expressed unanimously. As there has not been any official notification that the election of women to these councils should be barred, it is to be hoped that common-sense will prevail and will result in women being represented on every parish council. All denominations should also be represented on these bodies.

The proposed duties of these councils should be so revised, and promptly, that all of them can be carried out. As you may not afford space for detailed criticism of them, I wish to express the hope that the County Commissioner, Thurles, to whom detailed observations on them were sent last week, will take suitable action about them, and promptly.

There is one very important point to which I invite serious consideration. If the Government will not make suitable financial arrangements with wholesale firms who supply essential foodstuffs and other goods to shopkeepers, especially to those in country districts, who are not sufficiently credit-worthy to be supplied with at least three months' reserve supply of them, it is most probable that there will be at least partial starvation for the poor customers who cannot afford to lay in a reserve supply of essential foods if the country has been invaded. Will the Government face this contingency?

It is to be hoped that, if the Government consider that there should not be any slacking in the preparations that should be made in case the country will be invaded, a definite announcement to that effect will be made officially, and without delay. Such an announcement should counteract, at least to some extent, the impression that was caused by the recent publication of views of an influential member of the Government.

The chairman of every parish council should convene a meeting of that body forthwith to consider carrying out each proposed duty for it that can be performed, and to make representations to their County Commissioner about the proposed duties that they consider to be beyond their power, or beyond their right, to carry out.

All citizens who wish to serve their country should realise that it is not only their duty, but it is essential in their own interests, to act on the recommendations of the Government as to the preparations that should be made in case the country will be invaded. Apathy on this subject, and further delay in taking suitable action about it, are very prejudicial to national interests.

It seems to me that parish councils could be of material use, not only during the national emergency, but subsequently, and without any statutory power, which it appears to be inadvisable to give them.

I hope that, if it is the will of God for Ireland to be invaded, He will protect all of us, especially the poor, for whose food during such an emergency suitable provision should be made without more delay.—Yours, etc., H. H. P. DEASY.

"EXAMPLE FROM ENNIS"

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—I read with frugal interest, but with unexpected amusement—I am afraid "Literary Criticism" left its inevitable after-effects of nausea—Mr. Arnold Marsh's letter in your issue of the 19th.

My opinion of Dublin, which I had previously regarded as the Athens of Ireland and the nucleus of Irish intelligentsia, has received a shattering blow when I read of one of her inhabitants arguing on behalf of the Ennis Urban Council who have applied to the Local Government Department for the sanction of the erection of a local swimming pool. For Ennis to apply for a swimming pool—well, that is understandable; after all, Ennis is Ennis—but for a Dublin man to agree with her about her intentions—well, after all, Dublin isn't Ennis!

Incidentally, a similar incident occurred here in Athy, and, although I suppose that I will be completely ostracised by the younger inhabitants of my home town for giving vent to my views, I thank God that the scheme has not so far succeeded. We already have a water supply which invariably refuses to function for a couple of weeks annually, and the amount of money required for the erection of a quite unnecessary swimming pool would about pay for an extremely necessary auxiliary pipe line. That is one of the reasons why Athy should not have a swimming pool at the moment. But the reasons for Ennis—Well!

Personally, I consider Ennis one of the wateriest towns in the whole of Ireland. It's very name, which means in Irish "Island" or "River Margin," suggests that, and the breweries and distilleries of which it boasts are most certainly reminiscent of fairly wet incidents. Next—within a five-mile radius of the town there are innumerable lakes—Lake Atedaun, Inchiquin Lough, Killone Lough, Fin Lough and Lough Cullcuinyheeda—only to mention a few, and then a few perches south one has the Shannon, which is tidal, if the Ennisans want a bit of the brine thrown in. Then, one rarely thinks of Ennis without recalling the River Fergus, the River Moyree and the Inch River, two of which actually flow through the town. And for the less circumspect there is a well at Killone Abbey, which, incidentally, was founded by Donnell O'Brien, who also founded Clare Abbey in 1194.

Local Government Department, please don't give Ennis a swimming pool, or they will drown.—Yours, etc., M. S. JACKSON.

BIRDS OF MOHER

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—I have read with interest your correspondent's letter on the subject of the Birds of Moher. I cannot directly answer his question as to whether the assembly of birds at the cliffs is seasonable, but it would look as though it were.

I was there this year about the 1st June. I was quite unaware that this was a known sanctuary for birds, and went there merely for a pic-nic and to view the cliffs. As we approached I was astounded by the noise of the birds, and, when we got in sight of the cliffs, by the layers upon layers of gulls packed tight together along the shelves of the cliffs. Most of them were nesting, and the nests were so close together that they were almost touching.

There appeared to be various kinds of gulls and guillemots as well, but these were mostly on a grassy lump of the cliff which had at one time fallen away and formed a little island in the sea below. I also saw cormorants, ravens, and an unidentified black and white bird, but no puffins.

As your correspondent says that it was early summer when he first visited Moher, it would appear to me that the birds may only be there in any quantity in the nesting season.—Yours, etc., "GENTIANA."

COMMONS AND THE WAR

Mr. J. J. Lawson (Labour, Chester-le-Street)—What about Dunkirk?

Captain Hogg quoted several cases of alleged dilatory procedure in service matters. These matters, he said, were trivial, but he mentioned them rather than discuss others which might shock the House more. What did the House wish him to speak about?

Rear-Admiral Beamish (Conservative, Lewes)—The rapidity of promotion. How is it that he has arrived at the rank of captain after nine months of service?

There were cries of "Oh" and "Shame" and "Withdraw."

Captain Hogg replied that it was not he who promoted himself. He did not care what rank he held so long as he could serve his country. The Prime Minister had his undivided loyalty, but there was a feeling that the Government was losing its first vim.

AIR MINISTER'S REPLY

GROWING POWER OF THE R.A.F.

Sir Archibald Sinclair, Air Minister, replying, said that members who pleaded for an offensive spirit were forcing an open door. The Government was convinced of the necessity of carrying on the war in the air and on the sea and eventually by land into the territory of the enemy. There had been a substantial increase in the flow of pilots from the training schools, and, whereas a certain figure of pilot production from Canada was expected by July or August next year, that figure would now be obtained by April. It might be that they would have to transfer training abroad.

Speaking of the assistance given by their European Allies, Sir Archibald said that a Belgian the other day certainly destroyed four, and probably five, German aircraft. A Pole a few days ago shot down three German aircraft himself. Then, seeing the Squadron-Leader attacked, drove off the enemy and saved the Squadron-Leader's life.

Referring to an American airman who had joined the R.A.F., he said they welcomed "these choice and chivalrous spirits."

FIGHTER SQUADRONS

"The number of our fighter squadrons in the front line was, in spite of the fighting going on, higher than ever before.

"After a week's intensive operations, our front line is thicker than it was before these operations began."

They were strengthening their bomber force. A much larger German bomber force was unable to inflict damage on Britain comparable to the damage Britain was inflicting on Germany and Italy, due to the British efficient system of defence. Their gunners and other ground defences, including the machine-guns, had shot down 55 aircraft since August 8, and they had accounted for 701 German aircraft in attacks on the country since that date.

The comparable British losses during the same period, including losses in bombing attacks on Germany and Italy, were 192 fighters and bombers.

British fighter pilots lost since August 8 over the sea and round the coasts were 90, as against more than 1,500 of the pilots and crews of German fighters and bombers. If the losses of British bomber crews over Germany were included, the figure was much less.

THE LONG NIGHTS

The fighting had been going on again that day, but on a lower scale of activity. They had shot down seven German aircraft without loss to themselves. As for the bombers, they were now operating on a systematic plan for the destruction of military objectives vital to the German war effort.

As the nights grew longer so would the arm of their heavy bomber squadrons lengthen, so that they should be striking deeper into the enemy's vitals.

They would never use their power in the air as an instrument of mass terrorism, but whereever materials were being converted into munitions there the strong arm of the Royal Air Force would reach out, and was reaching out that very night, and there they would break the fetters with which Hitler sought to bind the peoples of Europe. (Cheers.)

The debate was concluded.

SPECIAL CRIMINAL COURT

FIVE YEARS' SENTENCE

POSSESSION OF MACHINE GUN

Charles Holmes, Rosfaraghan, Ferbane, Offaly, was sentenced to five years' imprisonment when found guilty of possession of one machine-gun, 45 rounds of Thompson-gun ammunition, and 12 rounds of .45 revolver ammunition on 5th July, with intent to enable another person by means of such firearms to endanger life, or cause serious injury to property, and with having them without a firearms certificate.

He was found "not guilty" of possession of the guns and ammunition with intent to endanger life or cause serious injury to property.

Mr. J. A. McCarthy, K.C. (instructed by Mr. D. O'Donovan, Chief State Solicitor's Office), prosecuted.

A Garda superintendent said that he arrested the accused and charged him with possession of firearms. He replied that he accepted responsibility for the firearms and ammunition, but that he had not got them with intent to endanger life.

POSSESSION OF ARMS

William Wykes, Farndreg, Dundalk, Co. Louth, was charged with having in his possession or control on 15th July last one revolver and one .22 rifle with intent to endanger life or cause serious injury to property. He pleaded "Not guilty," but pleaded guilty to a charge of having the arms in his possession or under his control without a firearms certificate.

Mr. Peter Woods (Messrs. McGahon and Woods), who appeared for the defence, said that Wykes came into possession of the arms fortuitously and kept them, but he had no intent to endanger life.

A detective officer said that Wykes came to the police barracks on the 17th July and gave himself up. A week later he surrendered a shotgun.

In reply to Mr. Woods, the witness said that he was sure that Wykes was not a member of any subversive organisation. He had hitherto borne a good character.

The Court accepted his plea on the second charge, and imposed a sentence of eighteen months' imprisonment, not to be enforced if he entered into his own bail of £10 for two years to keep the peace and be of good behaviour.

Mr. J. A. McCarthy (instructed by Mr. D. O'Donovan, Chief State Solicitor's office) prosecuted.

MR. CHURCHILL'S SPEECH

REACTION IN OTHER COUNTRIES

FEELING IN WASHINGTON

PRESS ASSOCIATION WAR SPECIAL.

WASHINGTON, Tuesday.

The general reaction here to the British Prime Minister's speech is that Mr. Churchill—whose speches are always taken at their face value in Washington because of his invariable truthfulness and frankness—knows now that Hitler cannot win this autumn.

"A damned good speech—shows a lot of confidence and is reassuring," was the comment of one hard-bitten newspaper man.

The British Prime Minister's references to the food blockade arouse little comment, because all that would be implied if America were allowed to feed the German-occupied parts of Europe is now more widely known.

DESTROYER QUESTION

Mr. Churchill's allusion to the destroyer question touches many hearts in America. Certainly a majority of the people here would like to see the warships Britain wants cross the herring pond, but many well-informed observers still doubt whether Congressional approval could be easily obtained, if at all. It is being recalled that when applying last winter for funds to recommission the World War destroyers Admiral Stark, Chief of Naval Operations, told Congress they were essential to American defence, and the wider aspects of American defence—fighting the German menace in Europe so that it will not threaten the United States—are not widely recognised in Congress.

INCREASED CONFIDENCE IN CANADA

OTTAWA, Tuesday.

Mr. Churchill's speech has inspired sharply increased confidence here. His announcement that Britain is willing to lease Western Hemisphere sites to the United States as defence bases, and the solid grounds for confidence shown in his review of the war were particularly welcome. The offer of leases to the United States is regarded with great satisfaction, since Canadians believe that it would bring the Americans in closer contact with the war and increase material aid from America.

It is expected here that a definite announcement regarding the positions of the United States bases to be established in British territory will soon be forthcoming. Mr. Mackenzie King, the Canadian Premier, is shortly receiving the Press in connection with his talks with President Roosevelt.

Mr. Churchill's review of the war is welcomed for its information regarding the skykrieg, which had caused some anxiety among Canadians.

GERMAN COMMENT ON THE SPEECH

"BOISTEROUS RIGMAROLE"

Mr. Churchill's statement was described on the German radio last night as "a desperate attempt by the War Criminal No. 1 to conceal the disastrous situation of the British Empire by a boisterous rigmarole."

German listeners, however, were told practically nothing of the contents of the statement, and not a single literal quotation was given.

Mr. Churchill was only said "to have blamed the French for the loss of British Somaliland" and "to have claimed that Britain was stronger than ever, without producing any evidence in support of this claim."

In an earlier broadcast in English for South Africa the German radio linked Monday night's air raid warning in Berlin with Mr. Churchill's speech.

"The attempted raid on Berlin," stated the announcer, "was a propaganda stunt staged by Mr. Churchill, who wanted to present another 'victory report' to the House, where he had to face an unpleasant situation, just as Mr. Chamberlain, in a similar situation, staged the notorious Sylt raid."—(P.A. War Special.)

TALKS ON THE BASES

MR. ROOSEVELT'S STATEMENT

HYDE PARK, NEW YORK, Tuesday.

Referring to defence at his Press conference to-day President Roosevelt said the talks with Britain on the acquisition of bases were progressing satisfactorily, but he was unwilling to predict when definite developments might be expected.

Asked whether there was a possibility that his agreement with Mr. Mackenzie King, Canadian Prime Minister, to establish a Canadian-American Defence Board might involve the use of American destroyers, Mr. Roosevelt remarked: "That's just a newspaper story."

The President was unwilling to predict when definite developments might be expected.

He advised the Press not to speculate on the sale of destroyers of the Great War period to Great Britain, and minimised the possibility that they might be used by Canada under the joint defence scheme.

50 DESTROYERS READY WITHIN A WEEK

WASHINGTON, Tuesday.

Fifty United States destroyers could be got ready to leave for England within one week should the United States Congress accede to Mr. Churchill's plea, a naval official stated to-night.

Over one hundred of the one hundred and twenty-three over-age destroyers have already been recommissioned, and the remainder will be returned to service shortly, he added.

ITALY INTENSIFIES BLOCKADE

ITALIAN WAR ZONE DEFINED

PRESS ASSOCIATION WAR SPECIAL.

ROME, Tuesday.

Following the recent example of Germany, Italy to-day announced an intensification of her "blockade of British territory" in the Italian war zone.

This zone comprises the shores of British passessions and protectorates in the Mediterranean, the Red Sea and the Gulf of Aden, of British colonies in Africa, and the shores of Egypt and the Sudan.

The announcement was made in a Note sent by the Italian Government to all neutral Governments.

In the course of the Note Italy says:—

"Any ship which navigates in these zones risks destruction by mines and other means used in time of war.

"In order to avoid such destruction the Italian Government invites you to make every effort to ensure that your nationals and your ships avoid passing through these danger zones.

"The Italian Government declining all responsibility for any damage which may be caused to ships and persons in these zones.

"The Italian Government, for its part, does not intend to hamper the transit of neutral ships through Straits which constitute essential navigation passages."

ARMED RAID ON BELFAST BANK

WOMAN CHARGED WITH CONSPIRACY

The story of the armed raid by five men on the Northern Bank, Divis street, Belfast, was related in the Belfast Custody Court yesterday, when Mrs. Kathleen Smith, aged twenty-five, of Moffatt street, was charged with having conspired with other persons unknown to commit the robbery.

The manager of the bank, Mr. James O'Kane, said that he was engaged at his desk about 10.35 a.m. on June 28 when his attention was attracted by five men walking into the office. The first man, who appeared to be the ringleader, said: "Put them up!" They were all armed with what appeared to be large Webley revolvers.

"They closed the front door when they entered," said witness, who added that three of the men went behind the counter and ordered the three other officials to the front. They were told to stand with their faces to the counter.

The ringleader told two of the men to get on with the taking of the cash, and they proceeded to do so. After some minutes all five men left by the side entrance into Percy street. Witness followed them on to the street, and saw them enter a motor car, which came slowly from the corner of Divis street. The number of the car was DZ or EZ 6277.

Continuing, witness said that he returned to the bank, and on making a check of the cash £1,424 14s 4d. was discovered to be missing. Of that sum he estimated £120 was silver and the remainder notes.

ORDERED TO KNEEL ON THE FLOOR

Reverting to the presence of the raiders in the bank, witness said that before leaving they ordered the officials to kneel on the floor.

To Mr. J. H. Campbell, K.C., R.M., witness said that he believed he could identify some of the men.

James C. Gardiner, junior clerk in the bank, said that he was at the back of the office counting silver when he saw a man coming round the counter. His cap was pulled down slightly over his right eye.

Witness heard someone shouting "Stick them up," and on turning round saw a man pointing a revolver at him. He then heard the order to get out to the front of the counter. Two of the men pointed revolvers at the officials while another began taking the cash, which was put into a large white bag, resembling a pillow-case.

Head-Constable J. Armstrong said that on June 28, at 11 a.m., he went to Beltax Hire Cars, Ltd., Academy street. William Murray, a driver employed by the company, entered the garage and witness accompanied him to Moffatt street, where he pointed out the dwellinghouse, No. 25. Accused was standing in the kitchen, and Murray pointed to her and said: "That is the woman."

Witness told her it was alleged that Murray had been taken into the house by two men, one of whom was armed, and detained against his will from about 10 a.m. till 11 a.m., when she was present in the house.

Witness cautioned her, and she replied: "I never saw that man before. He was not in my house with two men this morning."

When asked if she had any statement to make, the accused replied: "I am innocent." She was returned for trial to the Belfast Recorder's Court on September 5th, the magistrate stating that he would reduce the bail to £100, with two sureties of £50. Accused said that she believed she could get the bail.

COMPANY MEETING.

FURNESS WITHY AND COMPANY, LIMITED

BRITISH SHIPPING IN WAR CONDITIONS

The forty-ninth annual general meeting of Furness Withy and Co., Ltd., was held yesterday in London. Lord Essendon, in moving the adoption of the report and accounts, said:—

"The past year should be looked upon as having covered three distinct periods—the pre-war period; the first few months of war, when the shipping industry was adjusting itself to the new conditions, and the third period commencing in February last, when all liner tonnage was requisitioned by His Majesty's Government. The first period showed a fairly substantial improvement over the corresponding period of the previous year, particularly in our New York-Bermuda service, for instance.

"The capital remains unaltered. The general and investment reserve account amounts to £1,500,000, or 25 per cent. of our Ordinary capital. There is a new item—viz., fleet replacement account. One important feature is that there are no charges on the company's assets, and the only item which carries anything in the nature of a fixed charge is the 5 per cent. Cumulative dividend on our £1,500,000 Preference share capital. The net profit for the year, including dividends received, amounts to £618,651, an increase of £113,500. After adding to the profit for the year the amount of £188,428 brought forward, there is a total available for appropriation of £807,079. Provision has been made for the Preference share dividend—viz., £45,000, and your directors recommend the payment of a dividend of 5 per cent., less income tax, on the Ordinary stock; that there be set aside for depreciation the sum of £300,000, and that a fleet replacement account be created and credited with £100,000, which will leave a balance of £189,579 to be carried forward to the current year, practically the same as the amount brought in."

NO PROFITEERING

It was desirable, said Lord Essendon, to emphasise that the shipping industry had no thought of making profits from the war. Their thoughts were concentrated on contributing the maximum effort of mind and material to the successful prosecution of the war, and to doing what lay in their power to protect the future of their industry.

"The £100,000 which we are now setting aside," he continued, "represents only 2¼ per cent. on the original cost of our existing vessels, and it is clear that the increased cost of replacement will much exceed this figure; consequently your directors attach the utmost importance to the necessity of augmenting the fleet replacement fund whenever circumstances permit. Our subsidiary shipping companies are adopting a similar policy."

The industry had pressed the Government very hard, but without success, to take the question of replacement costs into consideration in their requisition arrangements. But it was stated in a recent White Paper that the Government were unable to agree to include in the rates of remuneration now being paid any allowance towards providing for future replacement.

POST WAR PROBLEMS

"It is obvious that, with taxation at such a high level, there will be very little, if any, margin of earnings over and above ordinary depreciation reserves available for putting aside towards the cost of new building. It is equally obvious that the Government will desire new ships to be built, and that shipbuilders will in due course be seeking orders for new ships. The shipping industry must make such provision as may now be possible for these future necessities, and, therefore, in agreement with the Government, an arrangement has been made by which, instead of receiving in cash the full value of ships lost by war risk whilst in Government service, a portion of such value, representing the increase in the insurance value of the ship since the outbreak of war, will be set aside in a Government fund bearing interest which will be earmarked specifically for new building in conjunction with the pre-war or basic value of the vessel to be replaced. This agreement has much merit in itself, but it serves another purpose which is very welcome to the shipping industry—viz., the avoidance of so-called capital profits being taken out of the industry. It is a matter of considerable satisfaction that the possibility of history repeating itself in this respect is to a large extent prevented by this mutual agreement between the Government and shipowners."

The report and accounts were unanimously adopted.

WATERFORD-BOUND COLLIER MACHINE-GUNNED

SAILOR WOUNDED

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

WATERFORD, Tuesday

When she arrived in Waterford, the s.s. Rose Marie reported having been machine-gunned by German aircraft off the Tuskar lighthouse during the week-end.

A member of her crew—Seaman John Knopp—was struck by bullets in the neck and left arm. The neck wound was caused by a glancing bullet, and was not serious. Knopp is being treated in the Waterford Infirmary.

The master of the ship, Captain Grootfeld, in an interview to-day, said that the ship was attacked unexpectedly by three 'planes on which German markings were plainly discernible. "We were steaming ahead for port," he said, "when the 'planes came at us in a noiseless glide from a great height and from aft the ship. The first thing we noticed was splashes in the water, and we thought at first it had begun to rain. But we soon knew it was not rain, but bullets which were falling, when we suddenly heard the stutter of machine-guns and the rattle of bullets on the deck."

The captain said that the 'planes flew away towards the west after loosing a burst of machine-gun fire each. He added that Knopp was at the wheel when he was struck.

Asked if any damage had been done, the captain said that it was slight. The wheelhouse, ship's compass and the two lifeboats were hit by bullets.

RESTART OF ENGLISH RACING

Further Old Kilkenny Records: Pride of Prussia's Story

FROM OUR TRAVELLING CORRESPONDENT.

LONDON, Tuesday Night.

THE Stewards of the Jockey Club met in London this morning, and announced that, after consultation with the Government, they are arranging to publish a list of fixtures for race meetings to start on Saturday, September 14. This does not go very far, but it does something towards relieving the tension, and it is possible that it will be amplified in the next Racing Calendar, due on Thursday.

There is some little interest attaching to the fact that the resumption after a three months' break will, it is hoped, be on a Saturday. That may mean that only Saturday fixtures will be sanctioned.

It is the general opinion that Saturday will be given precedence over all other days of the week, but owners and trainers would be deeply disappointed if the fixtures list contained notification only of possible meetings on the last day of the week. The Windsor course is available at the moment, and, as it is situated in a relatively safe area, that seems the most probable place at which the first meeting will be scheduled to take place, with another fixture in the north, perhaps at Haydock Park, on the same day.

More Olden Kilkenny

There was a great man to race in Kilkenny once, Mr. James Sullivan, of Lacken Hall, who used to run a distinguished horse, Pride of Prussia, a top-notch 'chaser when there were giants like Empress, Whisper Low and Too Good roaming the land in search of purses. Mr. Sullivan, like his fellow-citizens, the Smithwicks, was a brewer, and he laid out the old Dancsfort racecourse to replace Mr. Bryan's course at Jenkinstown, where racing had ceased.

His descendants do not appear to have inherited his passion for racing, and his name is a little forgotten, except by elderly people, for he did not race much after the early eighties. Then, too, he ran his horses as "Mr. James Andrews," this being the name of the man who looked after all his horses, including those that drew the beer, so his own name is not preserved in the records.

Win at Baldoyle

Mr. Sullivan was much liked, and, after Pride of Prussia won the Metropolitan Steeplechase at Baldoyle, it was written that he was a man who had done far more for the advancement of racing in Ireland than dozens of those with greater pretensions to be considered its patrons in this country.

His eulogist continued: "The most popular win I have ever seen on an Irish racecourse was Pride of Prussia in the Metropolitan, and the way Mr. 'Andrews,' James Gannon and W. Canavan were cheered when the trio approached the weighing-room was something to remember, as proving, if proof were needed, that no people in the world know better than the inhabitants of this country how to appreciate the conduct of one whose every act in public and social life, as on the turf, has been a model of probity, honour and good faith.

"Had we but a few more gentlemen on the Irish turf of the same stamp as 'Mr. James Andrews' Baldoyle would not have to complain of the paucity of visitors, and if every city of the same dimensions in this country as Kilkenny could only boast of a Smithwick and a Sullivan, then, indeed, would the prospects of our much-beloved pastime assume a brighter hue."

N.H. 'Chase Victory

It is impossible to say whether this panegyrist was raised in Kilkenny or was merely a connoisseur of its beer. Pride of Prussia was bred by Mr. Talbot, of Greenan House, Durrow, and it was in his colours that he ran in England and performed the notable feat of winning the National Hunt Steeplechase as a four-year-old.

It was run that year at Four Oaks Park, near Birmingham, and Pride of Prussia, who was ridden by the great Mr. E. P. Wilson, was the first Irish horse to win it. Back in Ireland, Pride of Prussia got a "leg," and one who noticed him out hunting said it was "so fearfully enlarged that it seemed out of the question to train him."

Mr. Sullivan, however, had a great liking for the horse, and leasing him from Mr. Talbot, sent him to be trained at the Curragh by James Gannon, of Straw Hall, where he made such a wonderful improvement that at the end of the season he was hardly recognisable.

In an account given in this correspondence of the Paris Steeplechase won by Too Good, Pride of Prussia was mentioned as having started joint favourite with the Eyrefield four-year-old. This stirred the memory of a reader who wrote from France, but did not give his address, as fololws :—

The Venture at Auteuil

"A patron of the stable who had helped himself when Pride of Prussia won at Baldoyle informed the writer that he persuaded Mr. Sullivan to run the horse at Auteuil, and hinted that he would hold himself responsible for the expense of the venture. When the horse fell back beaten, as you describe, the parties concerned were amazed; and to make matters worse his name stank in the nostrils of the French 'sports,' so they were greeted with cries of 'A bas Monsieur Sulli-vaan, a bas Monsieur Sulli-vaan.'

"It then transpired that instead of galloping down the long slope of the up fence by the main public entrance, the horse had jumped and ricked his shoulder; but carried on with the leaders to the last fence, and then finished fourth. If there was joy in Grafton street there was half a crown missing from every till in Kilkenny. I think the horse never ran again. He was an immediate success at the stud, and it was a great blow to my friend, the genial Dick Talbot, when he lost him, uninsured, in his second season."

Curious Coincidence

This correspondent notes the strange coincidence that on the day the account of Pride of Prussia's running at Auteuil appeared here, there was also on page 3 a report of the marriage of Mr. Sullivan's grandson, a Lieutenant-Commander in H.M.S. Ajax.

LIMERICK JUNCTION CARD

NURSERY SEEDLING FOR STAYERS' PLATE

Crotanstown Selected Should Win Cork Plate

Train—Kingsbridge, 11.40 a.m.

EXCEPT in one race, there will be fair-sized fields at Limerick Junction this afternoon, when the Cork Plate, a selling nursery handicap, will be the most attractive event. The principal race of the meeting, the South of Ireland National, will be run to-morrow.

Tote Double on Third and Fourth Races.

Ten runners have been declared for the Cork Plate, and two of them, Suzie and Polly's Star, are trained in the Crotanstown stable. Both have shown promising form, and the stables selected may be best to stand.

There will also be a big field for the Stayers' Plate, in which Delage is set to concede weight to all the others. Mr. C. Odlum's useful mare is sure to make a bold bid, but may not beat the lightly weighted Nursery Seedling, who stayed on well when winning over two miles at Killarney. Selections:—

WALL STREET FIRM

MARKET RESPONDS TO CHURCHILL'S OPTIMISM

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

NEW YORK, Tuesday.

The Stock Market was hesitant to-day, but there was some buying in the afternoon, based on the theory that a rally is in the offing. Meanwhile underlying sentiment is a little brighter on the business prospects and indications that the Blitzkrieg is far short of expectations.

The market finished around the day's best and mostly a point higher, with sentiment aided by Mr. Churchill's optimistic remarks.

The closing tone was firm.

Call money remained at 1 per cent., and the outside rate was unaltered at 1 per cent. Prime paper was quoted at ½ to ¾ per cent. Open market discount rates were unchanged at ⅜ to 7/16 per cent. for ninety-day Bank bills and ⅜ to 7/16 per cent. for six-month bills. After opening unchanged at 4.01½ sterling exchange advanced to 4.02½ during the morning, the rate remained at this level in the afternoon, but finally eased, to close 1 point up—compared with the previous close—at 4.02¼.

Silver was unchanged at 34¾.

On the Bond Market to-day Government Securities and Railroad Bonds were firm.

The day's sales totalled 2,380,000 dollars.

ENGLISH RACING RESUMPTION

FIXTURES TO START ON SEPTEMBER 14

Racing will be resumed on Saturday, September 14. The news was released in the following official statement after a meeting of the Stewards of the Jockey Club, held in London yesterday:—

"Following further consultation with His Majesty's Government, the Stewards of the Jockey Club are arranging to publish a list of fixtures for race meetings to start on Saturday, September 14."

It is not expected that there will be any further official statement as to the racecourses, which will be utilised when racing is resumed, until the Racing Calendar is published to-morrow. There has been no racing in England since the third week in June, the last fixture being that at Wolverhampton on Monday and Tuesday, June 17 and 18.

The Stewards of the Jockey Club have been busy for some weeks completing their plans for a resumption of racing. They have taken a "census" of horses in training, and know exactly how many are juveniles, how many are three-year-olds, and how many are four-year-olds and upwards. It is expected that there will be no shortage of horses.

The number of racecourses available is a different matter, but it is understood that among those in immediate readiness are Hurst Park, Windsor, Haydock Park, Lewes, Manchester, Alexandra Park, Plumpton, Hawthorn Hill, Fontwell Park, Cheltenham, Leicester, Birmingham and Nottingham.

To-morrow's Racing Calendar is expected to contain a list of forthcoming meetings, provisional upon the course of events and subject to immediate abandonment, and full details and conditions of races to close by next Tuesday, August 27. Entries will then be published on August 29, weights on September 5, and acceptances on September 12.

Racecourse executives who have been granted fixtures will thus have ample time to make the necessary arrangements for forage, catering, etc.

RUGBY FOOTBALL

The final of the Leinster Senior Schools' Cup will be played at Lansdowne road on St. Patrick's Day, and the Junior Schools' Cup final on the following Saturday. Leinster Senior Cup ties also being arranged for both these dates. The first of the inter-Provincials will be decided on November 9th, Ulster opposing Leinster at Belfast, and on November 30 Leinster play Connacht at Dublin. Leinster travel South to play Munster on December 7. The first big game of the New Year will be the Combined Universities v. Rest of Ireland at Lansdowne road on January 25. Leinster play return matches with Munster at Dublin on February 8, with Connaught on February 22, and with Ulster on March 8. The Leinster Senior Cup competition begins on March 15.

SWIMMING

WATER POLO CUP SURPRISE

ANOTHER FINE DISPLAY BY W. DEANE

The Sandycove Club Gala at Blackrock Baths last night was not helped by the weather, which was blustery and cold, but a fine crowd turned up for an excellent programme.

The most important items on the card were the Leinster Senior Water Polo Cup semi-final and High Diving Championship, but the Club 200 Metres Championship was also of special importance having regard to the impressive quality of the entry.

The water polo game produced more vigour than skill, but this was somewhat compensated for by the keenness of the exchanges and some exciting passages. National beat Trinity for the first time in the Senior Cup, and fully deserved their win. Ryan in goal, Justin Tallon at back, and J. O'Toole forward, were the outstanding players in the game. The Trinity team played below their usual form, and were feeble in shooting.

Eddie Heron, as usual, was successful in the diving event, winning easily. W. Deane, as expected, won the Club 200 Metres Championship without difficulty, although the opposition was of good quality.

The gala concluded with an exhibition of flight diving by the Sandycove team. Details:—

50 Metres, Juveniles (Club)—P. Nugent, 1; M. Digby, 2; J. O'Neill, 3. Time—40 3-5 secs.

50 Metres Open Handicap (Women)—Miss M. O'Kelly, Dublin (5), 1; Miss I. O'Carroll, do. (5), 2; Miss D. Durkin (17), 3. Time—39 secs.

50 Metres Open Handicap (Men)—J. Nairn, Pembroke (5), 1; W. Young, Sandycove (10), 2; C. Cuffe, do. (3), 3. Time—34 secs.

200 Metres Club Championship—W. Deane, 1; W. H. Ashmore, 2; P. Kinsella, 3. Five competed. Twenty yards; ten yards. Time—2 mins. 37 secs.

Junior Squadron Race (200 Metres)—Young Leinster (D. Digby, S. Collins, J. Skehan, M. Feddis), 1; Army, 2; Bray Cove, 3. Five teams competed. A touch; five yards. Time—2 mins. 13 secs.

Leinster High Diving Championship—E. Heron (holder), Sandycove (103 points), 1; M. Feddis, do. (52 points), 2; J. Foley, do. (45 points), 3.

WATER POLO

UNIVERSITY COLLEGE, DUBLIN 3
DUBLIN UNIVERSITY 0

University College attacked with the advantage of the strong wind, and led at half-time by two goals—O'Toole and Byrne—to nil. Trinity had much of the attack in the second period, but finished badly. After several chances had been missed, O'Toole, by strong play, made an opening for Byrne to score a third. National stayed the better, and should have added to their score.

U.C.D.—D. Ryan; P. O'Sullivan, J. Tallon (capt.); E. Byrne, J. O'Toole, S. Collins, F. Hill.

Dublin University—R. J. McCall; B. Solomons, P. R. Purcell; W. Houston (capt.), G. F. Anderson, W. H. Ashmore, P. C. Denham.

Referee—Mr. Cecil Fagan.

THE LEINSTER BRANCH GALA

To-morrow, a gala organised by the Leinster Branch of the I.A.S.A., will be held at Blackrock Baths, at 6.45, in aid of the St. John Ambulance Brigade, for the High Diving Championship of Ireland. The leading divers of Ireland will compete, and E. Heron, J. Foley, A. Davis, M. Feddis and J. Brennan will strive to keep the title in Leinster. Invitations for the 100 Yards have been sent to R. N. Case, W. Deane, W. Ashmore, P. Condon, J. Rafter, J. Tallon, O. O'Brien, G. I. McCabe, D. Page and W. Hawkins. This race will probably be the most attractive feature of the programme. The other events are: Ladies' and Men's 50 Metres Handicap, Display of Life-saving, Leinster Intermediate Water Polo Cup final, Clontarf v. Sandycove; and Leinster Senior Water Polo Cup final, Clontarf v. U.C.D. or Dublin University.

GAELIC GAMES

CHAMPIONSHIP FINAL

Kerry and Galway are Faithful to the Old Style of Football

(By PAT'O.)

TWO counties have remained faithful to the older style of Gaelic football. They use the hand pass occasionally in an emergency, but never as an arranged plan. Galway and Kerry have relied on secure catching at all reachable heights, long accurate kicking from defence and midfield, with skilful positioning in attack, and quick, hard shooting. These tactics, added to superb physique, have brought the two counties to a football final that has lost none of its glamour. The teams that drew a record crowd of 70,000 in 1938 can do so again.

Kerry's three goals against Cavan—all in a space of ten minutes round the third quarter of an hour—were typical of Kerry's traditional recoveries when all seemed lost. These goals crushed Cavan who had been treating spectators to superior football. O'Gorman's brace of goals were deft touches that caught young Kelly unawares in the Cavan goal. John Walsh's goal was different. Getting the ball at midfield, he dropped it to his toe and raced out to the left, where Kennedy kept the road clear. Dribbling fast, Walsh caught Cavan's backs out of position, and his shot had pace and power and was out of Kelly's reach.

IMPROVEMENT NEEDED IN KERRY TEAM

Outside these scores, Kerry forwards and midfield were so listless and disjointed that they looked a beaten side. Their backs saved them time and again when Cavan's speed developed diagonal passes of hand and foot. O'Keeffe again kept a great goal (Kerry were never without a safe goalkeeper), and Dillon, Sheehy and Sean Riordan were masters of craft. Some of the Kerry players looked palpably short of training. A big improvement, with some changes in attack, are certain before the final.

Galway, equal to Kerry in reach and weight, played the most impressive football of the day. From goal to goal there was not a weak link. With Connaire back, the Connaught champions are formidable challengers. Young players like Canavan, Casey and Duggan played sound football, in no way oppressed by the occasion. Meath had hard luck in losing their captain (Tony Donnelly), who was assured of scores. He had been the inspiration of the Leinster attack. Meath were outreached for high balls, particularly around midfield, where Dunne and Duggan struck up an effective Galway partnership. The U.C.G. discus champion, Duggan, was a college hurdles champion before putting on the weight that he used to such good purpose at Croke Park.

MEATH'S MISTAKE

Had Meath's forwards taken the points that offered in the second half when Matt Gilsenan changed the complexion at midfield, the finish would have been close, indeed. Instead of accepting useful minor scores Meath shot for goals to find McGauran, Sullivan and Connolly one of those "stonewall" lines—typical of Galway's hunting country. To add to the Westerners' strength they had Mulholland and Burke, a new central attack of rare reach and cool skill.

Galway's championship prospects are rosy, although the Kerry men are more determined than ever to reverse that 1938 re-play. Kerry's front line does not strike me as good enough to reach their 14th championship or bring them level with Dublin in the number of titles won. It is significant that Dublin won their last All-Ireland final in 1923. The non-resident rule has lost them a dominant position they once held.

KILKENNY-LIMERICK MATCH

Hurling returns to the footlights. Next Sunday we have the Junior final at Limerick, where Galway face a smart Cork fifteen, drawn from a dozen clubs, with Buttevant and Ballincollig prominent. On September 1st Kilkenny and Limerick seniors meet at Croke Park in what promises to be an absorbing final. Kilkenny had a close call against Cork a year ago, and easily won the 1940 Leinster title. The 1939 fifteen are likely to line out again without a change in position. Against Dublin, Kilkenny gave an effortless exhibition of modern hurling at its best and cleanest. For speed of delivery and command of ash Kilkenny's side compares well with their best fifteens. Their forwards lack height. They will look diminutive against Limerick's tall backs. But they are rare battlers, deadly accurate shots close to goal, and are gaining experience daily.

Limerick again proved a sound side in Munster, unbeaten to the final whistle. A few are aging, but their newcomers are shaping well. Cooke, Stokes, Herbert, and Chalke are all stylish hurlers with pace. Limerick took one final against Kilkenny's two in three outings, so that their confidence is not impaired. They are heavier than Kilkenny.
